

CONGRESS ADJOURNS SINE DIE AFTER TWO YEARS OF ALMOST CONTINUOUS LEGISLATIVE TOIL

LA FOLLETTE BILL FOR SEA SAFETY PASSED IN LAST HOUR OF SESSION

Post Office "Pork Bar" Abandoned and House Resolution for Old Appropriation Is Substituted

INDIAN BILL IS WITHDRAWN Congress in Session All Night Winds Up Business at Noon; Hilarity Is Lacking

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Concluding the first half of President Wilson's administration, the sixty-third congress adjourned sine die at noon today. The capitol re-echoed with cheers when the gavel of Vice President Marshall and Speaker Clark sounded "Taps."

The president and his entire cabinet witnessed the close, in the president's private chamber, adjoining the senate. The president's signature on the last bill was the signal for the concluding ceremonies, in accordance with time honored custom. Among the last to receive approval was the seamen's labor bill.

The La Follette bill provides better working conditions for sailors, more lifeboats and rafts, better construction of ships and prevents deserters' arrest.

Senator La Follette has served notice that beginning at the next session of congress, he will begin a fight to force lifeboats for all. He is particularly displeased with the relaxations in this direction permitted on the great lakes.

Andrew Furuseth, representative of the Seamen's union, who has been urging passage of such legislation for many years before, while expressing his pleasure at the declaration, took a great tragedy on the lake to bring congress and the country to a realization of the seriousness of this laxness with respect to life boats.

The clause in the postoffice appropriation bill providing that assistant postmasters be abolished was eliminated by the conference report.

Adjournment came today after practically continuous sessions of both senate and house since last Tuesday morning. It also marked the end of almost constant meeting of congress since the president's inauguration, two years ago today.

As the life of congress ebbed away, the usual dramatic and historic scenes were re-enacted. Then members dashed for trains.

While congress adjourned at noon, officially it was some minutes afterward before the final gavel sounded. The house stopped its clock.

The senate did not resort to this subterfuge, but Vice President Marshall held that body until 12:04 to finish his "Good-bye address."

Despite the passage of a resolution continuing the appropriations of the Indian bill of last year, and the filibuster of Senator Gronna, of South Dakota, the conference report on the appropriation bill was called up and passed just before noon.

A filibuster on the Indian bill and confirmation of many nominations were among the senate's last tasks.

The nomination of George H. Rublee of New Hampshire, to the federal trade commission, was among those refused confirmation.

Defeat of the ship purchase bill and postponement of rural credits legislation were the features of the closing hours.

Another important bill to die was the Philippine independence measure.

The congress expiring today was another "billion dollar congress," its appropriations aggregating $1,120,000,000.

Failure to enact legislation required by President Wilson when the houses convened last December was a feature of the session. The Philippine independence, conservation, water power development, and the ship purchase bills, all urged by the president, died today.

An extra session of congress has also been thrown into the discard, at least temporarily, pending foreign developments.

Day dawned today with congress still in session, awaiting adjournment sine die at noon. The passage of the La Follette seamen's bill was the most important legislation.

Little business faced the sleepy-eyed congressmen today after their all-night vigil. A bare handful of members remained until the early hours this morning. At 6:30 a hurry call for a quorum in the senate was sent out.

Not in years has such a tame final night session being witnessed. Usual boisterous hilarity, even in the house, was lacking, both houses being

NELSON IS CHOSEN TO HEAD REGENTS TROTSMAN IS OUT

University Men Decide that Presidents Cannot Serve More Than One Term; Jones Vice President

NORMAL SCHOOLS NEED FUNDS Regents of Normal Schools Contend That Teachers Are Underpaid and Dormitories Needed

MADISON, Wis., March 4.—(Special).—A. P. Nelson of Grantsburg, was elected president of the board of regents of the University of Wisconsin yesterday, succeeding J. F. Trotman of Milwaukee, whose resignation was accepted. Immediately following, the regents passed a resolution that no president of the board is eligible to succeed himself.

Regent G. D. Jones of Wausau, was elected vice-president of the board.

Normal Regents Want Money

The Normal school regents are asking for approximately $1,500,000 a year for the next two years. This includes operation, maintenance and capital.

"Unless additional dormitories are provided for the normal schools, the students will be housed in barracks," said President Theodore Kronshage of Milwaukee. The board is asking for two dormitories.

The estimated attendance of the schools for the year 1914-15 is 4,270 according to the regents figures. The annual cost per student is given as $11.06, which is nearly $100 less than the individual cost per student at the university. On this fact the regents hang their hopes of a larger appropriation from the legislature.

Teachers Are Underpaid

That the normal school teachers do not receive sufficient salary for the class of instructor needed was another claim of the regents. Of the 138 teachers employed in the state normal schools last year 45 of them quit to accept positions in other schools at an advance in salary.

"It is impossible for us to build up a permanent and competent teaching staff with the present low salaries prevailing," said President Purce of the Milwaukee normal.

"Many of our instructors receive less than the city high school teachers. The net increase in growth of the schools for the past year was given as 9 per cent."

"KICKERS" TODAY OBJECT TO PAVING PROGRAM OF CITY

Residents on North Fourth Street Declare Proposed Work Would Be Serious Tax Burden Now

Nearly every property owner in North Fourth street, between Vine and La Crosse street, by petition, protested the paving of that part of the street today before the Board of Public Works.

Today is "Kickers' Day" and the board is receiving protests of property owners for proposed street paving in all parts of the city. Few have appeared.

North Fourth street residents assert that because the sewer was placed on their property last year, the expense will be too great.

Thomas E. Wooley, contractor, "kicks" against the laying of a limestone top dressing on South Sixteenth street. He served notice up on the board some days ago which will be presented to the council along with the North Fourth street petition. Wooley wants granite dressing on the street, and says he will refuse to pay for the limestone dressing.

TURKS ABANDON DARDANELLES IN DEAD OF NIGHT

Successful Retirement of Ships Assigned to Give Battle in Straits Puzzles the Allies

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
LONDON, March 4.—The Turkish fleet, assigned to give battle to the Anglo-French warships inside the Dardanelles, has fled at the approach of the allied war squadron, according to Athens dispatches today.

While a heavy fog hung over the strait, the Turkish war craft lifted anchor and steamed silently out of Nagara road and into the sea of Marmora. With the lifting of the mist, allied aviators reported not a single Turkish war vessel in the strait and reconnoitering flights far up Marmora sea failed to reveal their whereabouts.

Admiralty officials today admitted they were puzzled at the mysterious disappearance of the Turkish fleet. When the bombardment of the Dardanelles began, nearly the entire naval forces of the sultan were concentrated in the narrow waters of Nagara road to block the progress of the allied fleet toward Constantinople. The French warships brought them to within six miles of the fort where the enemy's fleet was concentrated.

Three More Forts Taken

The Turks are believed to have withdrawn to the very approaches of Constantinople, prepared to pass the Bosphorus and enter the Black sea if the Ottoman capital falls.

Turkish aviators flew over the allied fleet all day Sunday and the report they made of the strength of the bombardment forces is believed to have caused a precipitate retreat.

Three more of the inner Dardanelles forts having been reduced, English and French warships continue to shell the forts still guarding the entrance to the narrowest part of the strait, according to Athens dispatches today.

A French squadron is renewing the attack on the Bulair forts on the Gulf of Saros side of Gallipoli peninsula with the object of landing marines to seize the railway.

Mine sweepers have cleared the channel for a distance of twelve miles above the entrance, penetrating nearly to Cape Kephaz, thirteen miles inside the Dardanelles. The fleet guns are now trained on smaller forts on the Asiatic side of the strait.

The latest statement from the admiralty regarding the Dardanelles operations emphasized the strength of the attacking forces. The battle ship Canopus, last heard from in South American waters, is training her twelve inch guns on the Turkish forts. Her sister ship, the Ocean, is also in action and the 6,500 ton Russian cruiser Askold, carrying twelve 6-inch guns, has joined the fleet. Forty battleships and cruisers, supported by a flotilla of destroyers and smaller vessels are now in action.

Dispatches this afternoon confirmed the report that German artillerymen are manning the big Krupp guns replying to the allied fleet bombarding the Dardanelles. A landing party found bodies of many Germans near the ruins of a dismantled Turkish fort.

Reduce Turk Forts

The admiralty also announced that the French battleship Suffren successfully bombarded Fort Sultan, on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles, while the English warships continued the bombardment of forts on the European side of the strait.

The French battleship Mopvet shelled a bridge over the river Cavack, partially wrecking it.

To Seize Railroad

The admiralty confirmed Athens dispatches reporting the attempt of the allies to send a landing party ashore above Bulair, on Gallipoli peninsula, to seize the isthmus over which a railway to Constantinople runs. A French squadron under Rear Admiral Guératte, operating from the gulf of Saros, bombarded the fortifications defending Bulair, the admiralty announced.

A Strong Fortress

Fort Sultan, mentioned in the French admiralty announcement, is undoubtedly the strong Turkish fortress of Kale Sultanie, also known as Chanak, on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles, opposite Fort Kild Bahr, under bombardment by the British fleet.

Fort Napoleon, which the admiralty announced has been reduced by French shells, is not listed on detailed maps of the Dardanelles defenses. Since the French fleet has confined its operations largely to the forts on the Asiatic side, it is assumed that Napoleon is one of the smaller land defenses just south of Kale Sultanie.

TARIFF RECASTING BIGGEST JOB DONE

Practically Every Schedule Rewritten by the First Democratic Congress in Sixteen Years

WASHINGTON, March 4.—After a record breaking session, both for amount of work actually accomplished, and length of time in actual session, the sixty-third congress expired by legal limitation at noon today. The first democratic congress for sixteen years, the first big job accomplished was the redrafting of the tariff laws, to replace the Payne-Aldrich schedules.

Wholesale reductions in the duties on wool, sugar and steel had been proposed by the democratic house which had preceded this congress, but President Taft had vetoed them. As the ensuing election seemed to be a rebuke to President Taft for preventing the enactment of these new tariff schedules, the democrats went to tariff reform with a vim, and the Underwood-Simons bill, now on the statute books was enacted. This was the biggest job probably done by this congress, it requiring the actual rewriting of almost every schedule, complicated not only by partisan feeling, but by selfish demands made by every state for protection of its own industries, but free trade for articles consumed, though not produced, by its citizens. The democrats had particular trouble in this respect over sugar, due to the action of the Louisiana delegation, and of the attitude of the men from the beet sugar states.

Banking Is Revolutionized

Next, congress tackled banking and currency reform. Twelve regional banks were established, which would, in times of stress, or of especial demand for currency, rediscount the commercial paper of the national banks, as to provide them with funds.

Those favoring government ownership can point with a certain amount of pride to the performance of this congress. It appropriated $35,000,000 for the building of a government railroad in Alaska, which will be operated as well as controlled by the government. The Alaska coal bill was an accompanying measure. It contained a provision that some of the coal lands should be retained for actual mining by the government, for the needs of the navy and other branches of the government.

Ship Bill Is Killed

This congress also put the government into the insurance business. At the outbreak of the European war, one of the great difficulties affecting this country was the almost impossibility of obtaining ships to take our products abroad. Due to the fear of mines, capture by one of the belligerents with subsequent prize court proceedings before release could be effected, and others difficulties, insurance rates soared to the point of prohibition. Urged on by excited would-be exporters, embargoes on foodstuffs at all the seaports and by all the railroads as a result, congress rushed through a law providing for a government bureau to sell war risk insurance.

This congress spent a great deal of time trying to put the government in the ship business, a bill providing for government purchase and operation of ships passing the house of representatives, but being killed in the senate by one of the most spectacular filibusters ever conducted, involving three all night sessions, and breaking records for continuous talking by senators.

A bill of tremendous importance to the merchant marine of this country was another of the group passed because of the emergencies arising out of the European war. This was the ship registry bill, which admitted to American registry, or gave the right to fly the American flag, foreign built ships which were owned or should be acquired by American citizens or corporations. Hitherto only American built ships were permitted to fly the American flag.

Panama Canal Tolls Bill

One of the most bitter contests during the congress was on the bill to repeal the exemption to American coastwise ships from the payment of tolls through the Panama canal. From the beginning it had been intended that American ships in the foreign trade should pay the same tolls as paid by the foreign ships with which they came into competition, but in the Panama canal act had been included a provision exempting American coastwise ships. The bill was put through.

To the south one of the most important bills was that providing for government standardization and inspection of cotton. By the establishment of government grades the southern producers felt that they could sell their cotton to better advantage, and without the danger of having their cotton bought from them as of a low grade, and sold to the manufacturers as of a higher grade. The method used in the bill or forcing dealing in these grades was by taxing at the rate of 2 cents a pound all sales of cotton on any exchange

POLICE NAB HIRT ON TECHNICALITY BENIKE ESCAPES

Anti-Police Editor Arrested When He Tries to Apprehend Deserter-Witness Wanted in West

FRANK WINTER UPSETS CRONON New Attorney in Famous Controversy Points Error in Procedure; Navy Man Has "Disappeared"

Despite the police court mandate, Joe Hirt, editor of the Crooked Cop, and accuser of patrolmen, neither paid his fine nor went to jail yesterday, Hirt had not "disappeared." He was just looking for Benike with a pair of nippers. Anybody but a policeman could have found him without ado.

At the time of Hirt's arrest, A. E. Bleekman, Hirt's attorney, was not in his office, and Frank Winter appeared for Hirt. He unhesitatingly declared Hirt was within his rights that even in the doubtful case that his appeal bond, made out on a blank provided by the court, was improperly executed or filed, Hirt could correct it, and served notice that any attempt to jail Hirt would start some real bother.

Hirt Does Police Work

Thereupon Hirt filed a new bond, and the jailer never saw him.

With a letter declaring that Edwin Theodor Benike is a deserter from the United States marine corps, signed by Major A. S. Lenore, assistant adjutant, and authority to arrest Benike signed by Col. Littleton W. T. Waller, Joe Hirt was on the trail of the police's star witness during the time when the police court declared him "disappeared" and had the drag-net out for him.

Hirt, one hand in a sling, the other clanking a pair of handcuffs, invaded all the old haunts of Benike, but found him not. It was Benike, the police witness, not Hirt, the police accuser, who had "disappeared."

Benike a Deserter

Major Lenore in his letter, says: "Edwin Theodor Benike enlisted in U. S. Marine corps on July 25, 1913, as a private for a term of four years, and deserted from Marine Barracks, Navy Yard, Mare Island, Cal., on October 5, 1913. This man is still a deserter at large and amenable to arrest and trial by naval court martial."

A copy of the Bertillon certificate describing Benike, with which the marine corps provided the La Crosse police department some time ago, was enclosed with the letter.

BURGLARS ATTEMPT RAID ON PLUMBERS

Robbery of the Baker-Niebuhr Plumbing company's establishment, Fifth and Jay streets, early this morning was foiled by J. T. Brogan, night watchman.

Brogan was making his nightly inspection of back doors and had stepped into the alley near the side door of the plumbing shop, when he heard someone run towards Fifth street. He saw a man, but just before Brogan saw the man, he stepped on a piece of sheet tin lying on the ground which rattled. This noise scared the marauder.

Brogan found the side door wide open. The lock had been picked. Nothing in the place was missing.

TUG IN TROUBLE

SHEBOYGAN, Wis., March 4.—The tug Hattie L., of Racine, proceeded to Manitowish, Mich., today after having given the Sheboygan life-savers their first work of the season late yesterday. The tug's crank-shaft broke when she was two miles off the local breakwater. She signalled for aid. The life-savers and the tug Peter B. Reiss responded. The life-savers kept the Hattie L. off the rocks until the Reiss arrived and towed her to harbor.

DARNELL TO MILWAUKEE

CHICAGO, March 4.—Rev. James Morrison Darnell, marrying dominie, was today ordered removed to Milwaukee to stand trial on a white slave charge. He was indicted there last week, on the allegation that he transported Ruth Soper, Owatonna, Minn. girl, from one state to another for immoral purposes. Darnell's lawyers' one plea that his removal be postponed until Saturday was granted.

NOTED SWINDLER CAUGHT

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 4.—Danny LeBar, alleged to be wanted by police here to answer charges of various swindles, including the famous wire-tapping swindle by which hundreds of Iowa farmers were defrauded, is in jail here today. He bumped into Sheriff Adam as the latter was taking a train from the city.

German General in Masterly Manner Covers Withdrawal from Vicinity of Przasnysz

BERLIN, via Wireless to London, March 4.—Forty thousand German troops narrowly escaped capture or annihilation by the Russians in the recent fighting around Przasnysz, it was admitted at the war office today. Only by the most desperate fighting and by forced marches did the Germans extricate themselves from an extremely dangerous position.

Following the Germans' victory over the Russians near the outskirts of Przasnysz, a single army corps advanced eastward from the town. Russian forces numbering 120,000 closed in on the kaiser's troops from the east and southeast.

For a whole day a bloody conflict was waged in the marshes, the Slavs attempting to surround the German corps whose position was most critical.

Toward night the Germans cut their way back toward Przasnysz. They were forced to abandon their wounded.

The Germans who had stormed Przasnysz, in the meantime had been forced to retire before superior forces, falling back upon Miava. The retreating army corps found itself still threatened by Russian hordes but maintained an orderly retreat, despite the fact that it was outnumbered three to one. Near Miava, German reinforcements were brought up and the Russian advance halted.

The Russian victory in this region is without the slightest importance, the war office asserted today. It cannot be compared to the recent storming of Przasnysz when the Germans took 10,000 prisoners. Petrograd, it was asserted, is making the most of this and other unimportant gains to divert public attention from the disastrous rout of the Slavs in the Mazurian lakes.

Fair Directors Succeed Selves

Association Is Out of Debt and Has Small Surplus to Start 1915 Exposition Here

Thomas H. Spence, John P. Salzer and William H. Tarbox will succeed themselves as directors of the La Crosse Interstate fair. There will be a fair this year at dates later to be fixed by the directors. Election of officers of the fair will be held at the next meeting of the directors.

The above business matters pertaining to the fair were disposed of by the La Crosse Interstate Fair association last night following a dinner of the directors at the Stoddard.

C. S. Van Auker, secretary of the association read his report of last year's fair, indicating that the fair had received in 1914 $22,962.52 and is ready for business with $70.44 on hand. Of the amount received the state appropriated $5,000 and donations of $1,204 were acknowledged. Old bills left over from 1913 amounting to $339.64 were paid so the fair is now out of debt.

SMOKY CITY BANK FAILS TO OPEN

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 4.—The German National bank, of Pittsburgh, located at 600 Wood street, one of the largest institutions in the city, doing a general banking business, failed to open its doors this morning. Shortly before 10 o'clock J. W. F. Eversman, the cashier, issued a statement saying that the directors held a meeting last night and because of business conditions and uncertainty regarding much of the bank's paper, decided to close. He declared that they expected to be able to pay depositors in full.

W. W. Ramsey is the president of the bank, which has a capital of $500,000. According to the latest statement the total deposits were $4,000,000.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

How the Cow Jumped Over the Moon.

"H. E. Y, diddle, diddle; the cat and the fiddle; the cow jumped over the moon!" sang daddy as the kiddies clambered upon his knees. "I don't believe that cow ever did jump over the moon!" cried Evelyn.

"What, don't believe what is actually in print?" laughed daddy. "Why, that cat with its fiddle has been playing music as the cow jumped over the moon for more years than I can remember, and the little dog has been laughing his funny laugh—yes, dogs do laugh; I've told you so before—and the plate has been running after the spoon, too, all that time."

"Oh, well, Nora put em there!" explained Jack in a superior sort of way. Daddy's eyes twinkled. "I'm just going to prove to you that a cow can jump over the moon if she tries real hard, and so can you and so can I if we are only smart enough."

"Oh, daddy!" The kiddies wanted to believe, but they just couldn't, so daddy must convince them.

"Well, you see, kiddies, the earth turns around on its axis every twenty-four hours, and in the course of a year it revolves 365 times. It's fair to suppose that during those 365 days the cow might be able to jump 'over' the moon."

"Oh!" cried the kiddies, round eyed. "Oh, daddy, we never thought of that."

"But you haven't told us yet how the cat learned to play the fiddle, daddy," said Jack.

"Oh, fiddle-dee-dee," cried daddy; "Isn't it time to go to bed?"

"No, daddy; not for four minutes yet, and if you don't 'splain right away how the cat plays the fiddle we'll pull your hair, daddy. We will, we will!" shouted Evelyn gleefully.

"Well, I'll tell you," began daddy rather lamely, it must be confessed. "There was the cat, and then there was the fiddle, and you see, after all, the nursery jingle doesn't say that the cat played the fiddle. It only says 'the cat and the fiddle.'" cried daddy, with much glee.

"Now kiddies must go to bed."

The TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

PATENTS AND POLLY

BY MOLLY McMASTER

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Crawford was flatteringly discouraged. As he mounted the steps leading to his boarding house he realized that he had lost the small model of his patent and that the knowledge in no way worried him. He had no doubt left it in the subway train that had carried him homeward from the financier's office.

However, since the thing was not worth financing and putting on the market, Crawford didn't care what happened to his patent. All he did know was that he would not spend another cent nor yet another atom of brain energy trying to invent egg boilers or any other kind of boiler. He had banked rather heavily on the outcome of his visit to the financier, but the expectations had ended. Crawford would hope for nothing in the future save his $20 a week. His dreams of sudden and vast wealth brought about by a startling demand for his patent egg boiler vanished into the past, even as his model itself had lost itself in the subway. Crawford hoped it had fallen beneath the wheels and been crushed to powder. He laughed bitterly and could not remember, so gloomy was his attitude, that the great financier had mentioned that a slight amount of added thought spent on the patent would not doubt result in a most successful egg boiler.

And Polly Woodward, returning from a hard day in the office of her employer, picked up the small package that had been left in the seat into which her tired body sank. She was far too weary to ponder on the exact nature of the thing she had found, but knew it to be something for kitchen use. It might be a baby feeder or even a grill of some kind. Later, when she had cooked her evening meal in the tiny kitchenette her fat boasted, she would no doubt have sufficient brain energy to fathom the character of her find. For the present she closed her eyes—they were strangely luminous—and robbed the gentleman opposite of the pleasure of watching them. He, also a tired toiler of Wall street, had been resting his own eyes unobservedly on the beauty of the weary little worker. John Galsworth was more than ever regretful that so many women were forced to enter the field of labor.

When Polly Woodward had finished her evening meal and the flush of health had returned to her cheeks and renewed power to her brain, she sat down with the patent and studied it minutely.

"An egg boiler," she mused. "I wonder if it's any good or just like the thousands of other egg boilers." Curiously got the better of her and she tripped lightly into her kitchen to experiment with Jim Crawford's patent and one of her sixty-cents-a-dozen eggs.

"I will have to use this for salad tomorrow," she told herself by way of apology for her extravagance. Using great care so that no harm would come to the model, Polly put in her egg. She felt certain that the person who had lost the patent would claim it by advertisement, and she did not want to damage it. To her interested eye the thing seemed to be one of those labor-saving devices so dear to the domestic woman's heart. Polly had many little contrivances that saved her both footsteps and time. Where there is adequate kitchen space the most modern equipment is none too modern.

"Surely it could be quite easily adjusted," she pondered while she cleaned the model and dried it carefully. "There would be one of these in every kitchen if it could be easily regulated to any number of minutes. All the girls in the office would have one. I wonder," the continuation of Polly's query was carried on in the small sitting room, whither she went with Crawford's patent. Her luminous eyes were half closed, so close was her scrutiny of the egg boiler. She sat down under the light, her busy brain hard at work.

When a week had passed and no one had advertised for the model Polly became impatient. She had perfected the boiler until it worked like a charm, and it irritated her to realize that the inventor was so lacking in interest as to put forward no claim for his patent. It should be on the market, yet she was not free to go to the financier in the office building in which she worked and put it before him. She had heard that John Galsworth was always ready to finance anything good.

It was Polly herself who finally advertised for the person who had left a small package on the subway containing an invention. Crawford, from whom the shades of gloom were gradually lifting, happened to see the advertisement and went forthwith in search of his lost property.

It was performed after business hours that he went. Polly Woodward had scarcely tidied up herself and her flat before her bell sounded. Crawford was decidedly pleased that he had lost his model when he beheld Polly in the doorway.

"You can make stacks of money out of that," she told him when she had drawn him into the cozy sitting room. "It only required a simple bit of regulating. You won't mind my showing you, will you?"

Crawford wouldn't have minded anything she chose to do, but he merely listened attentively to her

curiously intelligent explanation of his error.

"By Jove! My head is solid ivory—not to have seen that," he said with a splendid dash of color in his cheeks and sparkle to his eyes. "But after all," he added quietly, looking at her, "it takes a woman's head to figure out these necessities for the home." He glanced wistfully about the lovely room that was tastefully but inexpensively furnished, and sighed.

Polly Woodward laughed outright. "Poor man," she said softly. "I pity any one who has to live in a boarding house. But," she added, quickly and joyfully, "don't you see that your patent will make a nice home for you if you just go about placing it properly?"

"One financier turned me down the day I lost it," Crawford told her. "There is a Mr. John Galsworth in our office building," Polly began hesitatingly, "I feel sure he would be interested if—"

"You are taking far too much trouble," interrupted Crawford. "If you will agree to take half the profits I will be glad to get the thing off my mind. We are busy at the office just now." He arose because he had already trespassed on her time. "The thing was useless without your improvement."

When he had gone Polly had time to realize that Crawford was most generous and that his personality was decidedly pleasing. After that she skipped out to the telephone in the corner chemist's and made an appointment with John Galsworth.

The big financier received her the following day in his luxurious office. His philanthropy was well known. Polly approached him with no fear and put her model before him.

Galsworth remembered having rested tired eyes on her beauty one evening in the subway. Her magnetism, together with the undoubted value of the egg boiler which she demonstrated to him, quite worked the charm.

When she had left the office Galsworth sighed. He felt the girl's presence even when she had disappeared from sight and again regretted the fact that women must struggle in the business world save in this particular instance. He rejoiced that Polly Woodward had entered his life.

And Polly returned to her office with a light heart. She went immediately to the telephone and told Crawford the good news. He was so delighted that he asked her to lunch with him by way of celebration, and Polly agreed. She was glad that she had worn her new blouse to the office that day.

When she returned to her office,

NO LOOKING BACK IN LA CROSSE

New Evidence Constantly Being Published

Since the long succession of La Crosse reports were first published in the local press there has been no looking back. La Crosse evidence continues to pour in, and—better still—those whose reports were first published many years ago, verify all they said in a most hearty and unmistakable way. Read the experience of Mrs. H. Hermanson, 1125 S. Third St. She says:

"I had dizzy and nervous spells and my kidneys were weak. My back ached intensely. I used different remedies, but nothing helped me until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. I was soon rid of the pain and other kidney ailments. Another of my family has used Doan's Kidney Pills for a weak back and kidneys and has been cured. The endorsement I have given Doan's Kidney Pills before, holds good. Whenever I have the least sign of disordered kidneys, I take a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills and they fix me up all right."

ATTENDANCE BILL KILLED YESTERDAY

Debate on Heim Bill Disfranchising Students Occupies the Assembly

MADISON, Wis., March 4.—The bill relating to compulsory school attendance was killed by the assembly yesterday. This bill provided for countenancing absence from school provided students were attending confirmation classes.

The debate on the Heim bill intended to disenfranchise students of the state educational institutions was opened by Assemblyman Crosby of Clark. The bill has been recommended for indefinite postponement. He said that nearly all of the states had restricted the rights of the floating population and went at length into the subject. Assemblyman Ostlie of Eau Claire, vigorously defended the right of the students of the state to vote.

"The qualifications for a voter in Wisconsin are one year's residence in the state, ten days in the precinct, and not being an idiot," said Ostlie. "This gives any tramp in the state the right to vote. And this assembly is considering disenfranchising intelligent and cultured young men from their rights as citizens of Wisconsin. The bill is a joke."

"The most nefarious piece of legislation ever presented in the Wisconsin senate."

This was the statement made in the senate this morning, by Senator Bray, regarding the Ackley water-pow bill.

Senator Bray yesterday offered a resolution in the senate providing for the appearance of Prof. E. A. Gilmore before the senate to give his ideas regarding the Wisconsin waterpower situation. The resolution met with spirited opposition because of the alleged implication in it that the "interests" were trying to put one over on the senate and that advice from outside sources was necessary. The debate was continued this morning and the resolution finally referred to the committee on state affairs. It was at this point that Senator Bray made a vigorous speech denouncing the pending bill. A resolution, made by Senator Monk providing for the appearance of members of the university faculty before the legislature or the legislative committees was passed by a vote of 18 to 16. Heretofore the faculty men have refused to appear on orders of the university deans because of the alleged activity of the university in state politics.

after a most happy lunch hour spent with Crawford, she rejoiced for the second time that she had worn her new blouse. John Galsworth had telephoned her. He wanted her to have dinner with him if she was not tired of talking business. There was much to be discussed about the egg boiler.

And if at dinner there were roses on the table for Polly, and roses in Polly's cheeks for Galsworth and only a short talk on the subject of egg boilers, no one minded overmuch. The evening passed with wonderful promise of happiness in its trail, for Polly and Galsworth had found one another.

Crawford went up that evening to the home of the sweetheart who had been waiting impatiently to hear the news of the egg boiler. But all Crawford did was to take her into his arms.

"Can you be ready for that trip in about four weeks?" he asked her,

Notary Public.

GET THE RIGHT PREMISES

Replying to a very intelligent criticism of his bill to take control of municipally owned public utilities away from the state commission and confer it upon city authority, Assemblyman Kurtenacker has given publicity to a letter in which he acquaints the public with the fact that his bill was not intended to be conclusive, but was introduced hurriedly in order to bring the matter before the legislature before the time for filing bills had terminated; the assemblyman is open to suggestions

and amendments, and has in mind

some better method of administering the La Crosse water works.

Upon this phase of the problem with which his measure deals, Mr.

Kurtenacker says:

The state railway commission has its hands full. It can give us help. It is a commission of good men. It may even go to appeal when need-

ed. But it ought to be more satisfactory to have authority right on the ground to handle local problems as they arise. You can't run a private

La Crosse business from Madison so

well as you can run it in La Crosse,

and with experts in charge, the same

rule should apply to a local public utility. It should be run by experts,

of course. I certainly do not favor any other kind of management. I should like to see it operated right and put on the right basis as to its finances.

One hardly sees wherein, if it would be advantageous to take the municipal water plant out of the hands of the commission on the ground that "you can't run a private

La Crosse business from Madison so

well as you can run it in La Crosse."

it would be less advisable to deprive

the commission of authority over the

lighting plant or the street car property, upon exactly the same ground.

The assemblyman seems to have fallen into the error of thinking that the commission is actually running

the water plant in the sense of management. Of course, as a matter of fact, it is not expected that the commission will deal with the details of administration, nor will it interfere

with an expertly competent administration of the water works. The commission's authority is a safeguard

against bad local management. Without disturbing the authority of the commission, Mr. Kurtenacker can proceed to the matter of legislation

that will enable La Crosse to attempt, under most favorable conditions, to secure able local management. Then, in the event that at any time the local management fails, we shall have the privilege of appealing

to the commission for aid. The condition today is that the Kurtenacker

bill would place the water plant under the absolute control of authority which "inexpert" inadequately describes.

Perhaps Mr. Kurtenacker eventually will accept this view, and from that point proceed to the truly valuable service he has in mind for La

Crosse. To the last period we agree with him that there should be some stronger and more expert local agency for the administration of our water works.

THE TRAIL OF HIRT

GROW'S HOT

The dead, dull absence of any effort to get the facts about matters relating to police performances is

enlivened by the reckless and animated effort to get Joe Hirt.

It ought to be easy. The police admit that they know a lot of damning things about him. Aside from the interesting question of why,

knowing these said unpronounceable

things, they showed no interest in getting him until he evinced an inclination to get them, the hilarious

spectacle has little significance.

Now this is not a defense of Hirt.

Far be it from us to defend one who has dared the lese majeste of speaking ill of the Handsome. Merely it is an inquiry, out of the dust of the pursuit of Hirt, as to why from all the blue-coated crusade there was not detailed a single helmet to get the

fugitive deserter who starred as witness-factotum in the exciting trial of the complaining witness. Perhaps not an officer could be spared lest,

in the apprehension of a mere deserter, the state's informant escape.

Oh, very well! Let go the hue and

cry. Perhaps, when the deep-mouthed hay is stilled, it will be found that someone has got the bar by the tail.

WE'RE ALL FOR

THE RAYMONDS

News of the elevation of E. C. Raymond to the district bench of Wyoming is received in La Crosse with gratification. It is pleasant to know that a young progressive schooled in

Wisconsin is helping make history in

a sister commonwealth. A discriminating lawyer, Mr. Raymond will lend strength to the Wyoming bench,

and the charming Mrs. Raymond will

oming official family. If the cares of his new trust shall not deprive us

of the annual visit of these interesting people, there will be nothing to

Crosse contemplates the well-earned preference of Judge Raymond.

uary, 1916.

Thoughts on Seeing the Back Yard

The snow has gone

And once again

I stand beside

The window pane

And see the spot

Where bloomed the rose,

And where the maid

The tinware throws.

Where once a sheet

Of crystal snow

Hid everything

That lay below

Now all is bare

And I may scan

Each empty corn

And sardine can.

And yonder lies

The wrench I missed

Where once I held

It in my fist,

And there's the hammer

That I sought

And vowed that in

The house I'd brought.

How camethose papers

From the press

To strew my yard

With such distress?

I vow that all

Was spick and span

The day that first

The snow began.

When from my life

The snow shall pass,

And bare of cover

Is the grass

I wonder will

My very appear

So very desolate

And drear?

Will what I once

Thought clean and neat

Be marred with

Refuse of the street?

And will the place

Where I have toiled,

Be with such grim

Disorder spoiled?

If so, I fain

Would pass away

When all the flowers

Are bright and gay

And sink into

My final rest

When my life-yard

Is at its best.

Chief Justice Stung

A firm of shady outside London

brokers was prosecuted for swindling. In acquitting them the court

with great severity said:

"There is not sufficient evidence to convict you, but if any one wishes to know my opinion of you I hope that he will refer to me."

Next day the firm's advertisement appeared in every available medium

with the following well displayed:

"Reference as to probity, by special permission, the lord chief justice of England."

Was a Prize Liar

This is said to be a day of spe-

paign a man approached a candidate and stated that for a small consideration he would be willing to work for his election.

"What can you do?" he was asked.

"Why, sir," said the man, "I can

start more lies on your opponent

than he and his friends can explain

away during all the rest of the campaign. When it comes to starting

man as my equal."

Advantage in Care

It was a cheap restaurant, and two men had just taken their seats at the same table. A waiter came bustling

up.

"Your order, gents?"

"Give me a boiled egg," said one of the men.

"And give me one, too," said the other, "and see to it that it's fresh."

"All right, gentlemen, certainly," said the waiter.

And then, stepping to the speaking

tube, he called out:

"Two boiled eggs—one of them

fresh!"

Sounded Like It

"Say, young man," asked the old

lady at the ticket office, "what time

how long does it stay?"

"From two to two to two-two,"

was the curt reply.

"Well, I declare! Be you the

CHAUNCEY OLCOTT TONIGHT

Chauncey Olcott comes to the La Crosse theater tonight for an engagement of one performance in the new comedy which Rachel Crothers wrote for him and entitled "The Heart of Paddy Whack." It is said the not in many seasons has this favorite lyric star had so fine a play or so excellent a supporting cast. Mr. Olcott is seen this season under Henry Miller's management in a new role, that of a middle-aged Irish bachelor whose heart runs away with him when his saucy ward returns from a Dublin school. The play is said to be a love story of charm and appeal, peopled with picturesque and interesting types of Old Ireland in 1830, and the quaint costumes of the period have furnished Mr. Miller with a background for setting the story that promises much to Olcott audiences. Mr. Olcott will bring with him a half dozen new songs, especially written for the new play. The cast will include Edith Luckett, Jennie Lamont, Maud Hordford, Charles Erwin Verner, Fleming Ward, Walter Coligan and others.

Lewis Offers $12,500 and Forty Per Cent of Receipts Which Pollock Relishes

CHICAGO, March 4.—Champion Freddie Welsh and speedy Charley White today were nearer a twenty round battle than they ever have been before. White's manager, Nate Lewis, declared today that the scrap is decided on. He said in a long distance talk with the Englishman's manager, Harry Pollock, the latter virtually agreed to accept a guarantee of $12,500 and 40 per cent of the gate receipts for a twenty round go at Denver, New Orleans or Havana, Cuba, with the Chicagoan.

"Pollock at first demanded $15,000 guarantee and 50 per cent," said Lewis today. "Then the champion and his manager said they'd trim the demand to $12,500 and 40 per cent. I expect the papers clinching the bout to be signed within a few days."

LIQUOR QUESTION IS BIG ISSUE IN MINNESOTA HOUSE

Concurrent Resolution Submitting Amendment to the Constitution to a Vote Is Postponed

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 4.—(Special.)—Taken unawares by the introduction of a concurrent resolution submitting to the people in the fall of 1916 a prohibition amendment to the constitution, the house Tuesday came dangerously near finding itself face to face with the necessity of voting on the measure and for more than an hour a scene of intense excitement prevailed.

Postponed for Week
Finally the opponents of the resolution, becoming aroused to the situation, succeeded in postponing consideration until next week, but it was a close call.

The resolution which stirred up all the troubles was introduced by Representative John A. Larimore of Minneapolis, who voted against county option. Representative Levi M. Davis of Long Prairie, who also opposed the county option bill, joined with Mr. Larimore.

Favor Referendum

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 4.—(Special.)—By a vote of 106 to 12 the house today passed a bill providing for submission of the initiative and referendum amendment defeated at the November elections. There was little opposition to the bill, but lengthy discussion regarding several amendments offered by Representative Christianson of Dawson. These amendments, Mr. Christianson said, were intended to strengthen the bill.

St. Paul-Minn. Unit

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 4.—(Special.)—Railroad freight rates to and from St. Paul and Minneapolis can be made the same by the state railroad and warehouse commission if bills introduced in the senate and house yesterday amendatory to the Cashman distance tariff laws are passed. Under present conditions St. Paul, Minneapolis and the Midway Transfer are separate points taking different rates.

Six Counties Dry

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 4.—(Special.)—Dr. George B. Safford, superintendent of the Minnesota Anti-Saloon league, said yesterday that preliminaries for the holding of county option elections in six counties have been started, and the same steps will be taken in ten other counties within a few days.

He prophesied that elections will be called in more than twenty counties by June 1.

The six counties already in the fight are Mower, Carver, Wilkins, Clay, Koochiching and Kanabec.

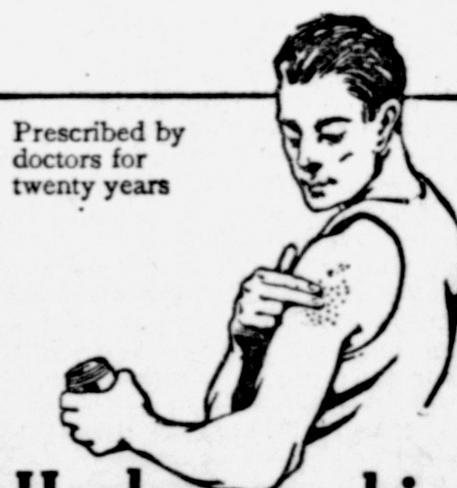

One-Senator Bill Up

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 4.—(Special.)—A "one-senator" bill reducing the number of senators and representatives and providing for reapportionment was introduced into the senate today by Senator Duxbury. The bill reduced the number of senators from 67 to 35, and the number of representatives to 75. There are 131 representatives.

Vote to Repeal Law

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 4.—(Special.)—By a vote of 39 to 25 the state senate yesterday voted to repeal the Elwell road law.

R. C. Dunn, father of the Dunn road law, asked to be excused from voting when the roll call started. Leaders on the repeal objected to excusing him, but he was allowed to pass the vote.

WAR RESOLUTIONS DIE IN MADISON

Bosshard Arms Embargo Memorial to Congress and Other War Suggestions Turned Down Today

MADISON, Wis., March 4.—(Special.)—Railroad representatives announced here today that they opened at Oshkosh last night a speaking campaign, which will be carried into every hamlet of the state, in favor of the passage of the two and one-half cent fare law.

The resolutions killed were: By Senator Bosshard, memorializing congress to prevent the shipment of arms and contraband of war. By Senator Bray, extending to President Woodrow Wilson the sympathy and encouragement of the people of Wisconsin in these days of trial.

The big fight came on the Bosshard resolution to prevent the shipment of war munitions abroad. He referred to the La Follette peace resolution in congress, and read from a La Crosse speech by Gov. Philipp in which the governor said "that it is our duty to cease to supply munitions of war to European countries."

Senator Bray offered a substitute for the Bosshard resolution, which he said "tells the truth."

The Bray resolution set forth that the shipment of arms from this country into Europe was done to the disadvantage of Germany. Bray denied the Bosshard charge that he was trying to inject comedy into the state. He said that he viewed the subject from the angle of a plain American and referred to the Bosshard resolution as pro-German.

Senator Perry in a reply to Senator Bosshard said: "I want to make it clear that the stalwart wing is not butting into this thing."

The Bosshard resolution was killed by a vote of 12 to 16.

The senate adjourned at noon.

Mr. Kemson had lived in La Crosse since 1871. He was a native of Norway. Surviving him is his widow and one daughter, Mrs. C. M. Granum of Beaulieu, Minn.

URGE PASSAGE OF HIGHER FARE BILL

Railway Men Open Speaking Campaign for Two and One-half Cent Fare in Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis., March 4.—(Special.)—Railroad representatives announced here today that they opened at Oshkosh last night a speaking campaign, which will be carried into every hamlet of the state, in favor of the passage of the two and one-half cent fare law.

The speakers invaded the upper end of the Fox River Valley today, speaking at Appleton and other cities. Speeches will be made in Beloit on the same subject on the afternoon of March 5.

The railroad men will present statistics at all of these meetings showing a decrease in earnings of the roads since the two cent fare law was enacted in 1907. The railroads contend that a fare of two and one-half cents will be necessary if the railroads are to be expected to give improved service.

Among those in the railroad party urging the fare increase are E. G. Potter of the "So"; E. E. Nash and C. A. Cairns of the Northwestern and P. C. Eldridge of the St. Paul system.

Nearly 200 petitions have been presented to the legislature signed by many thousands of people asking that a two and one-half cent fare law be enacted. Only two petitions, offered by Assemblyman Budlong of Marinette county, have been offered in the legislature in opposition to the increase.

Many of the petitions ask for an investigation of the matter by the legislature and in two or three instances the petitions have asked that this investigation be carried on by the railroad commission.

BIG SPARTA BOUT DRAWS A HUNDRED FANS FROM HERE

Special Train to Boxing Match Arranged for Tonight Through Popular Demand; Men Ready

Nearly one hundred and fifty fight fans, many of them members of the old La Crosse Athletic club, are ready to leave at 6:30 tonight on a train chartered especially for the occasion to attend the boxing show at Sparta, headlined by Art Nelson, Sparta light heavyweight, and Kid Monaghan of Chicago, aspirant for heavyweight honors.

E. G. Seaton and others started the campaign for the special train a week ago today. By Saturday half of the required number of names had been procured and on Monday it was announced that the original mark of seventy-five had been overshot by more than twenty-five names.

This afternoon prospects were that twice the number of fans originally considered would make the trip to Sparta. Stops to be made at West Salem and Bangor are expected to result in the addition of twenty-five or more people to the company.

First Show of Club
The show tonight will be the first held by the newly organized Sparta Athletic club in which Art Nelson is prime mover. The slate shows three bouts, aggregating twenty-four rounds, with two Sparta men and one fighter from Warrens, Jimmy Wagner, on the card.

The principal go of the evening between Nelson and Monaghan is expected to be spirited. The Spartan, after weeks of training, appears fit as a dollar for the mix, advised from Spawheat of an unknown quantity around this section of the country, has a big reputation in Chicago circles.

LA FOLLETTE BILL PASSED IN LAST HOUR OF SESSION

ing too busy to vent their feelings in the time-honored manner. About 4:30 this morning the house held a brief song fest, Representative Conroy of New York singing two solos which brought storms of applause. Then the members rendered "Old Black Joe," and other popular songs.

The ship purchase bill is dead. Administration senators, threatened with continuation of the republican filibuster, did not plan another attempt to revive it. The bill dies in conference.

Rural credits legislation also is dead. Instead a congressional commission is advised to investigate the whole subject and report to the next congress by January 1, 1916.

Seamen's Bill Still Lives

Immediately following the passage of the La Follette seamen's bill the president signed it without hesitation. It had been rumored that he would veto it.

The fight on the Indian bill began at 3 a. m. in the senate when the conference report was called up. Senator Crona objected to items for Indian attorneys and allowances to certain Indian tribes. Senator La Follette also promised vigorous objection to the elimination of Choctaw Indians of Mississippi from participation in Oklahoma tribal funds.

"Private Bills" Go Through
Numbers of minor "private" bills were passed by both branches during the night session.

The house passed the bill providing aid to Alaskan agricultural colleges, approved dropping impeachment charges against former Judge Daniel Thew Wright and, as a tribute to the veteran Representative Bartlett of Georgia who retires, passed a bill appropriating $50,000 for a federal building at Forsyth, Ga. Republican leader Mann paid a tribute to Bartlett's long service and had Bartlett's bill passed as a token of the house's esteem.

President Arrives
President Wilson, accompanied by Secretary J. P. Tumulty, Executive Secretary Rudolph Foster, and his confidential stenographer, reached the capitol shortly after 10 a. m. today.

He proceeded directly to his private office in the senate wing and sent word to the leaders of both houses that he was ready for business.

President Wilson has signed the sundry civil bill, with a $126,922,756 appropriation, and the $6,060,716 fortifications bill.

BORN AS CAESAR INFANT WILL LIVE

For the second time in two weeks, the same La Crosse doctor successfully performed a Caesarian operation in La Crosse today. This time it was performed at the Lutheran hospital.

Mrs. Hans Scheldrup of Palmero, N. D., today became the mother of a healthy son through use of the surgeon's knife. Both Mrs. Scheldrup and the infant will live.

Owing to the unusualness of the operation and the few times it proves successful in saving lives of both mother and infant, the coincidence of the two operations has been noted. Mrs. Michael Deegan of Mound Prairie, was the other woman who submitted to the same surgeon's knife a few days ago.

HEIM BILL LOSES IN THE ASSEMBLY

MADISON, Wis., March 4.—(Special.)—The Heim bill to disfranchise students at educational institutions was defeated in the assembly last night by a strong majority. Prior to the defeat of the original bill, Assemblyman Crosby of Clark county offered a substitute which provided that the fact of the residence of a student at an educational center shall not gain or lose him a residence there. The debate centered on this amendment, which was finally defeated, 57 to 13. The original Heim bill provided that no student shall be allowed to vote at an education center unless he is self-supporting. Lawyers in the assembly pronounced this bill unconstitutional, and a substitute was presented which attempted to accomplish the same purpose in a constitutional way.

When the assembly convened last night Assemblyman Julius Hanson of Shawano county attacked the measure, saying if such a bill were enacted the principle would speedily be extended to other occupations and vocations. Assemblyman Minkley, in attacking the bill, said that the wet and dry question was the main spring back of this proposed legislative action. He said he was opposed to illegal voting but saw in this bill only an attempt to disfranchise persons who would not vote the way certain elements in society wanted them to. Minkley's speech brought such an applause from the galleries that Speaker Whitte threatened to clear the galleries if it were repeated.

The assembly killed the Pieper bill which would practically have repealed the eugenics marriage law. It provided that contracting parties to a marriage need not be physically examined but must sign a statement declaring themselves free from communicable diseases.

By a vote of 68 to 15 the assembly killed the Kent bill to increase the minimum salary of Wisconsin teachers from $40 to $60 a month.

Citizen Brought Home
Another emergency proposition caused by the European war was the necessity of doing something for the tens of thousands of American stranded in Europe by hostilities. Their paper money, and travelers' checks made worthless by the sudden demand for gold, and with many lines of ships held in ports because of the fear of capture, their situation was desperate. Congress passed two appropriation bills to aid in bringing home these unfortunate people.

A number of problems were forced on this congress also by the Mexican troubles. In connection with the landing of marines at Vera Cruz, following the insult to the flag incident, congress rushed through a resolution—the vote in the senate being taken at 3:20 a. m.—justifying the president.

The senate has ratified, during this congress, twenty-six peace treaties with foreign countries some of them being put through after the declaration of war in Europe. Two other important treaties, one with Colombia, paying her $25,000,000 as compensation for Panama, and the other with Nicaragua, paying her $3,000,000 for a naval base in Fonseca Bay and for an option on the Nicaragua canal route, were discussed, but failed to reach a vote on ratification.

Following years of anti-trust agitation, two bills were passed to regulate big business.

One the federal trade commission act, placed industrial corporations under such supervision as the interstate commerce commission exercises over the railroads. With confirmation, just before adjournment, of a majority of the trade board members, the commission will begin work at once. Among its duties, certainly in the president's opinion, will be the drafting of a scientific tariff system. The other law, the Clayton anti-trust act, was aimed particularly at unfair competition and trade methods. It was intended also to clarify the Sherman law's "twilight zone."

M'CORMICK VICTIM OF SCHOOL PADDLE

High school teachers surprised Principal McCormick after school Tuesday in honor of his birthday. All the faculty were present and each department made the chief an appropriate present.

During the fourth period in the morning session the absence of two of the teachers who had no classes was noticed by Mr. McCormick, but he attached no importance to the fact. The teachers had gone down town to purchase the presents which were "put under his plate" at 4:00 o'clock.

After the presents had been reviewed and the "birthday greeting" administered (with a paddle made, especially for the occasion in the manual training department), a light lunch of coffee and cake and other dainties was partaken of by the assembled teachers.

Chicago Grain Review
CHICAGO, March 4.—Today's wheat market was a rather humdrum affair. Opening prices were down 1-2c for May and 1-8c for July under yesterday's close. There were recessions at times, followed by advances, prices at one time going to $1.45 5-8 and $1.17 5-8, which represented advances of 1 1/2-3c and 5-8c respectively on the opening. Later May wheat sold at $1.44 1-2, while July was unchanged with the opening.
The corn market was as dull as wheat trading. May futures were down and July unchanged at the opening. Later prices were down 1-8c and 1-4c from the opening.
After opening 1-8c higher from yesterday's close, on a buying flurry, oats later fell off 3-8c.
Provisions opened inactive and slightly lower but later in the day showed general slight advances. During the afternoon session wheat showed great weakness, owing to a succession of rumors that kept the pit excited. One rumor was that large orders for war supplies, including ammunition, had been cancelled during the last 48 hours for foreign governments. The trade was also alarmed by the progress being made by the allies in penetrating the Dardanelles, and the traders pictured Russian wheat pouring into western Europe. Offerings of September wheat at large concessions from July took place today.

Corn closed lower, suffering in sympathy with wheat. Oats was materially lower, trailing after the other grains. Provisions remained about steady.

Team in Events with

Spring

With the close of the normal school basketball season near at hand athletes are planning on indulging in another form of sport—that of an indoor spring track and field event. The meet will be held in preparation for the spring outdoor work that will be started as soon as the first peep of spring makes itself apparent.

On April 9 the men and the co-eds are to engage in an indoor meet at the normal school gymnasium. Events for the women will be the thirty yard dash, the high jump from ropes, and regular rope climbing. The men will do the thirty yard dash, the high jump, hand-over-hand rope climbing, the shot put (16 lb.) and wrestling. The plan is to make the men as well as the women engage in all events of their respective classes in an elimination program to select the pick of the athletes. To the winners of each event will be given gold medals.

Silver medals will be presented to the runnersup.

In the spring events the normal school should stand among the top-most teams of the state. Some of the records made in previous years show that fast teams have been developed here and the fact that some of the athletes are still in school makes the school's chances all the more rosier for this year's track team.

Some of the records made at the normal school follow:

The Records

1912—Lee Griffin, 100 dash in 10 2-5 seconds.
1912—Lee Griffin, 220 yard dash in 23 2-5 seconds.
1914—Harold Ryan, 440 yard dash in 54 seconds.
1912—Robert Keyes, 880 yard dash in 2:15 2-5 seconds.
1914—Youngberg, mile dash in 5:12 3-4 seconds.
1912—Hyde, 120 hurdles in 18 1-5 seconds.
1914—Downey, 220 hurdles in 26 3-5 seconds.
1914—Emil Krause, high jump, 5 feet, 5 1/2 inches.
1912—Lee Griffin, broad jump, 20 feet, 3 inches.
1914—Marcus Byers, pole vault, 9 feet, 1 inch.
1914—Christianson, discus throw, 93 feet.
1914—Zelmer Wachter, shotput (12 lbs.) 40 feet.

ROOKIES AND REGULARS

MARLIN, Texas.—Pitcher "Pol" Perritt, late of the Cardinals, took his first workout in a Giant uniform here today. Wet grounds hindered the work somewhat.

SAVANNAH, Ga.—The first intimation of what the regular line-up will be was given today by Manager Donovan. Pipp took first, Boone, second, Maizel, third and Peckinpah, short.

DAYTONA, Fla.—The condition of the playing plat making it impossible for the Dodgers to train, Charley Ebbets' thoughts naturally turned to holidays. He spent most of the day planning for a Sunday game at which he is to present a flag to the Daytona Athletic association.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va.—With Ayers, Ainsworth and Henry below weight, and other National regulars about par, Trainer Martin was happy today. He devoted himself to taking three inches from Ray Morgan's "equatorial section," and preparing for the main spash.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—Hans Wagner today began his sixteenth year as a Pirate. He signed and turned in his contract and then went to the Hazelwood shoot with Fred Clarke and ex-Pirate Ed Abbatichio.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas.—"Rip" Hagerman, Cleveland pitcher who jumped to the Chi-Peds, now the Whales, walked into the Indian camp here today, having done a "Walter Johnson" back to O. B. forces.

TAMPA, Fla.—The Cub hospital list was started today. Raymond Murphy, Heinie Zimmerman's college recruit was spiked. Raymond Murphy did the spiking. How he accomplished the feat is a mystery. Jimmy Lavender has a substitute for the emery ball. He uses spittle and sand to throw it.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—Manager Rowland said today he has practically decided on his tentative team. The only place worrying him is third base. Bromwich and Baker are the rivals for the job.

HOT WELLS, Texas.—Battling, fielding and medicine ball manipulation followed by a session of road work busied the Cardinal regulars and rookies yesterday with the exception of Lodz, Meadows, Steele and North, recruit pitchers. Manager Huggins had them learning to pitch.

HOUSTON, Texas.—Handball and basketball in the Y. M. C. A. gym was the program for the Browns yesterday.

BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush your Kidneys occasionally if you eat meat regularly.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

HAVANA.—With Armadon Marsans, who wears a tight fitting injunction donned by the federal court, cavorting in center field the St. Louis Feds took a strenuous workout under Fielder Jones Wednesday, finishing with road work. Marsans' injunction doesn't enjoin in Cuba.

MACON, Ga.—Maranville to Evers to Schmidt play was picked up in the Braves' camp today, where it was dropped last October. Magee will be out again Monday.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—If wet weather doesn't interfere, Pat Moran plans to put the Phillies through a fast workout today. Much interest is attached to the expected arrival today of George Whitted, ex-Boston utility man.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.—Gossip from Connie Mack's elimination camp has it Larry Lajole is producing the goods. Mack feels confident the infield combination will be as good as last year's when Collins was on deck.

MADISON, Wis., March 4.—Badger track athletes are on the last lap of a period of strenuous training preparation for Saturday's meet with Notre Dame at South Bend. The Wisconsin team will leave tomorrow for South Bend. Coach Tom Jones expects strong competition from the Catholics, in view of their recent meet against Michigan. The Badger coach looks for Mucks, Keeler and Gardner to improve their former records in the weight events. Hedges and Harvey should score points in the distance events. Notre Dame speed merchants have somewhat of a call on the Badgers.

No one is without prejudices, but some are better than others at concealing them.

Two surprises were in store for followers of the La Crosse City Bowling league last night at the Malloy alleys when the Lotus club took two out of three games from the Gunds and the Eagle seconds took three straight games from the Eagle firsts. Only eight men rolled in the Eagles-Eaglets match.

Steady and consistent bowling won for the Lotus club from the Brewers, who fell down in their last game after taking the second go. Rogstad, Freng and Ed Horn did the hard work for the winners with Paulson and Ulrich rolling the best ball for the Gunds.

Emil Horn cavorted around the head of the alley for a score of 225 in the second game of the Aerie match. His other scores were good.

LOOKS are often deceiving. In the old days everybody could spot the tobacco chewer just by the hump in his cheek.

"Right-Cut," the Real Tobacco Chew, gives men fine, satisfying tobacco comfort—and nobody can notice that they are chewing.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—cut fine, short shred—seasoned and sweetened just enough, cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is the Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short shred so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary candied tobacco makes you spit too much.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up with molasses and licorice. Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste in "Right-Cut."

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

Post Office "Pork Bar" Abandoned and House Resolution for Old Appropriation Is Substituted

INDIAN BILL IS WITHDRAWN

Congress in Session All Night Winds Up Business at Noon; Hilarity Is Lacking

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Concluding the first half of President Wilson's administration, the sixty-third congress adjourned sine die at noon today. The capitol re-echoed with cheers when the gavel of Vice President Marshall and Speaker Clark sounded "Taps."

The president and his entire cabinet witnessed the close, in the president's private chamber, adjoining the senate. The president's signature on the last bill was the signal for the concluding ceremonies, in accordance with time honored custom. Among the last to receive approval was the seamen's labor bill.

The La Follette bill provides better working conditions for sailors, more lifeboats and rafts, better construction of ships and prevents deserters' arrest.

Senator La Follette has served notice that beginning at the next session of congress, he will begin a fight to force lifeboats for all. He is particularly displeased with the relaxation in this direction permitted on the great lakes.

Andrew Furuseth, representative of the Seamen's union, who has been urging passage of such legislation for many years before, while expressing his pleasure declared it would take a great tragedy on the lakes to bring congress and the country to a realization of the seriousness of this laxness with respect to the boats.

The clause in the postoffice appropriation bill providing that assistant postmasters be abolished was eliminated by the conference report.

Adjournment came today after practically continuous sessions of both senate and house since last Tuesday morning. It also marked the end of almost constant meeting of congress since the president's inauguration, two years ago today.

As the life of congress ebbed away, the usual dramatic and historic scenes were re-enacted. Then members dashed for trains.

While congress adjourned at noon, officially it was some minutes afterward before the final gavel sounded. The house stopped its clock.

The senate did not resort to this subterfuge, but Vice President Marshall held that body until 12:04 to finish his "Good-bye address."

Despite the passage of a resolution continuing the appropriations of the Indian bill of last year, and the filibuster of Senator Gronna, of South Dakota, the conference report on the appropriation bill was called up and passed just before noon.

A filibuster on the Indian bill and confirmation of many nominations were among the senate's last tasks.

The nomination of George H. Rublee of New Hampshire, to the federal trade commission, was among those refused confirmation.

Defeat of the ship purchase bill and postponement of rural credits legislation were the features of the closing hours.

The congress expiring today was another "billion dollar congress." Its appropriations aggregating $1,120,000,000.

Failure to enact legislation required by President Wilson when the houses convened last December was a feature of the session. The Philippine independence, conservation, water power development, and the ship purchase bills, all urged by the president, died today.

An extra session of congress has also been thrown into the discard, at least temporarily, pending foreign developments.

Day dawned today with congress still in session, awaiting adjournment sine die at noon. The passage of the La Follette seamen's bill was the most important legislation.

Little business faced the sleepy-eyed congressmen today after their all-night vigil. A bare handful of members remained until the early hours this morning. At 6:30 a hurry call for a quorum in the senate was sent out.

Song Festival at 4 A. M.

Not in years has such a tame final night session being witnessed. Usual boisterous hilarity, even in the house, was lacking, both houses be-

NORMAL SCHOOLS NEED FUNDS

Regents of Normal Schools Contend That Teachers Are Underpaid and Dormitories Needed

MADISON, Wis., March 4.—(Special.)—A. P. Nelson of Grantsburg, was elected president of the board of regents of the University of Wisconsin yesterday, succeeding J. F. Trottsman of Milwaukee, whose resignation was accepted. Immediately following, the regents passed a resolution that no president of the board is eligible to succeed himself.

Regent G. D. Jones of Wausau, was elected vice-president of the board.

Normal Regents Want Money

The Normal school regents are asking for approximately $1,500,000 a year for the next two years. This includes operation, maintenance and capital.

"Unless additional dormitories are provided for the normal schools, the students will be housed in barracks," said President Theodore Kronshagen of Milwaukee. The board is asking for two dormitories.

The estimated attendance of the schools for the year 1914-15 is 4,270 according to the regents figures. The annual cost per student is given as $11.06, which is nearly $100 less than the individual cost per student at the university. On this fact the regents hang their hopes of a larger appropriation from the legislature.

Teachers Are Underpaid

That the normal school teachers do not receive sufficient salary for the class of instructor needed was another claim of the regents. Of the 198 teachers employed in the state normal schools last year, 45 of them quit to accept positions in other schools at an advance in salary.

"It is impossible for us to build up a permanent and competent teaching staff with the present low salaries prevailing," said President Purce of the Milwaukee normal. "Many of our instructors receive less than the city high school teachers. The net increase in growth of the schools for the past year was given as 9 per cent."

"KICKERS" TODAY OBJECT TO PAYING PROGRAM OF CITY

Residents on North Fourth Street Declare Proposed Work Would Be Serious Tax Burden Now

Nearly every property owner in North Fourth street, between Vine and La Crosse street, by petition, protested the paying of that part of the street today before the Board of Public Works.

Today is "Kickers' Day" and the board is receiving protests of property owners for proposed street paving in all parts of the city. Few have appeared.

North Fourth street residents assert that because the sewer was placed on their property last year, the expense will be too great.

Thomas E. Wooley, contractor, "kicks" against the laying of a limestone top dressing on South Sixteenth street. He served notice upon the board some days ago which will be presented to the council along with the North Fourth street petition. Wooley wants granite dressing on the street, and says he will refuse to pay for the limestone dressing.

THREE TURK PORTS ARE TAKEN

Attacking Forces Show Unusual Strength with Heavy Reinforcements of English and French

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
LONDON, March 4.—The Turkish fleet, assigned to give battle to the Anglo-French warships inside the Dardanelles, has fled at the approach of the allied war squadron, according to Athens dispatches today.

While a heavy fog hung over the strait, the Turkish war craft lifted anchor, and steamed silently out of Nagara road and into the sea of Marmora. With the lifting of the mist, allied aviators reported not a single Turkish war vessel in the strait and reconnoitering flights far up Marmora sea failed to reveal their whereabouts.

Admiralty officials today admitted they were puzzled at the mysterious disappearance of the Turkish fleet. When the bombardment of the Dardanelles began, nearly the entire naval forces of the sultan were concentrated in the narrows of Nagara road to block the progress of the allied fleet toward Constantinople. The successful advance of the Anglo-French warships brought them to within six miles of the fort where the enemy's fleet was concentrated.

Three More Ports Taken

The Turks are believed to have withdrawn to the very approaches of Constantinople, prepared to pass the Bosphorus and enter the Black sea if the Ottoman capital falls. Turkish aviators flew over the allied fleet all day Sunday and the report they made of the strength of the bombardment forces is believed to have caused a precipitate retreat.

Three more of the inner Dardanelles forts having been reduced, English and French warships continue to shell the forts still guarding the entrance to the narrowest part of the strait, according to Athens dispatches today. A French squadron is renewing the attack on the Bulair forts on the Gulf of Saros side of Gallipoli peninsula with the object of landing marines to seize the railway.

Mine sweepers have cleared the channel for a distance of twelve miles above the entrance, penetrating nearly to Cape Kephez, thirteen miles inside the Dardanelles. The fleet guns are now trained on smaller forts on the Asiatic side of the strait.

The latest statement from the admiralty regarding the Dardanelles operations emphasized the strength of the attacking forces. The battleship Canopus, last heard from in South American waters, is training her twelve inch guns on the Turkish forts. Her sister ship, the Ocean, is also in action and the 5,000 ton Russian cruiser Askold, carrying twelve 6-inch guns, has joined the fleet. Forty battleships and cruisers, supported by a flotilla of destroyers and smaller vessels are now in action.

Dispatches this afternoon confirmed the report that German artillerymen are manning the big Krupp guns replying to the allied fleet bombarding the Dardanelles. A landing party found bodies of many Germans near the ruins of a dismantled Turkish fort.

Reduce Turk Ports

The admiralty also announced that the French battleship Suffren successfully bombarded Port Sultan, on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles, while the English warships continued the bombardment of forts on the European side of the strait.

The French battleship Mopvet shelled a bridge over the river Cavack, partially wrecking it.

To Seize Railroad

The admiralty confirmed Athens dispatches reporting the attempt of the allies to send a landing party ashore above Bulair, on Gallipoli peninsula, to seize the isthmus over which a railway to Constantinople runs. A French squadron under Rear Admiral Guerpate, operating from the gulf of Saros, bombarded the fortifications defending Bulair, the admiralty announced.

A Strong Fortress

Fort Sultan, mentioned in the French admiralty announcement, is undoubtedly the strong Turkish fortress of Kale Sultanie, also known as Chanak, on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles, opposite Fort Kild Bahr, under bombardment by the British fleet.

Fort Napoleon, which the admiralty announced has been reduced by French shells, is not listed on detailed maps of the Dardanelles defenses. Since the French fleet has confined its operations largely to the forts on the Asiatic side, it is assumed that Napoleon is one of the smaller land defenses just south of Kale Sultanie.

TARIFF RECASTING BIGGEST JOB DONE

Practically Every Schedule Rewritten by the First Democratic Congress in Sixteen Years

CURRENCY REFORM CAME NEXT

Regional Reserve System Established and the First Government-owned Railroad Authorized

WASHINGTON, March 4.—After a record breaking session, both for amount of work actually accomplished, and length of time in actual session, the sixty-third congress expired by legal limitation at noon today. The first democratic congress for sixteen years, the first big job accomplished was the recasting of the tariff laws, to replace the Payne-Aldrich schedules.

Wholesale reductions in the duties on wool, sugar and steel had been proposed by the democratic house which had preceded this congress, but President Taft had vetoed them. As the ensuing election seemed to be a rebuke to President Taft for preventing the enactment of these new tariff schedules, the democrats went to tariff reform with a vim, and the Underwood-Simons bill, now on the statute books was enacted. This was the biggest job probably, done by this congress, it requiring the actual rewriting of almost every schedule, complicated not only by partisan feeling, but by selfish demands made by every state for protection of its own industries, but free trade for articles consumed, though not produced, by its citizens. The democrats had particular trouble in this respect over sugar, due to the action of the Louisiana delegation, and of the attitude of the men from the beet sugar states.

Banking Revolutionized

Next congress tackled banking and currency reform. Twelve regional banks were established, which would, in times of stress, or of especial demand for currency, rediscount the commercial paper of the national banks, as to provide them with funds.

Those favoring government ownership can point with a certain amount of pride to the performance of this congress. It appropriated $35,000,000 for the building of a government railroad in Alaska, which will be operated as well as controlled by the government. The Alaska coal bill was an accompanying measure. It contained a provision that some of the coal lands should be retained for the needs of the navy and other branches of the government.

Ship Bill Is Killed

This congress also put the government into the insurance business. At the outbreak of the European war, one of the great difficulties affecting this country was the almost impossibility of obtaining ships to take our products abroad. Due to the fear of mines, capture by one of the belligerents with subsequent prize court proceedings before release could be effected, and other difficulties, insurance rates soared to the point of prohibition. Urged on by excited food stuffs at all the seaports and by all the railroads as a result, congress rushed through a law providing for a government bureau to sell war risk insurance.

This congress spent a great deal of time trying to put the government in the ship business, a bill providing for government purchase and operation of ships passing the house of representatives, but being killed in the senate by one of the most spectacular filibusters ever conducted, involving three all night sessions, and breaking records for continuous talking by senators.

A bill of tremendous importance to the merchant marine of this country was another of the group passed because of the emergencies arising out of the European war. This was the ship registry bill, which admitted to American registry, or gave the right to fly the American flag, foreign built ships which were owned or should be acquired by American citizens or corporations. Hitherto only American built ships were permitted to fly the American flag.

One of the most bitter contests during the congress was on the bill to repeal the exemption to American coastwise ships from the payment of tolls through the Panama canal. From the beginning it had been intended that American ships in the foreign trade should pay the same tolls as paid by the foreign ships with which they came into competition, but in the Panama canal act had been included a provision exempting American coastwise ships. The bill was put through.

To the south one of the most important bills was that providing for government standardization and inspection of cotton. By the establishment of government grades the southern producers felt that they could sell their cotton to better advantage, and without the danger of having their cotton bought from them as of a low grade, and sold to the manufacturers as of a higher grade. The method used in these grades was by taxing at the rate of 2 cents a pound all sales of cotton on any exchange

Anti-Police Editor Arrested When He Tries to Apprehend Deserter-Witness Wanted in West

FRANK WINTER UPSETS CRONON

New Attorney in Famous Controversy Points Error in Procedure; Navy Man Has "Disappeared"

Despite the police court mandate, Joe Hirt, editor of the Crooked Copper and accuser of patrolmen, neither paid his fine nor went to jail yesterday, Hirt had not "disappeared." He was just looking for Benike with a pair of nippers. Anybody but a policeman could have found him without ado.

At the time of Hirt's arrest, A. E. Bleekman, Hirt's attorney, was not in his office, and Frank Winter appeared for Hirt. He unhesitatingly declared Hirt was within his rights, that even in the doubtful case that his appeal bond, made out on a blank provided by the court, was improperly executed or filed, Hirt could correct it, and served notice that any attempt to jail Hirt would start some real borb.

Hirt Does Police Work

Thereupon Hirt filed a new bond, and the jailer never saw him.

With a letter declaring that Edwin Theodor Benike is a deserter from the United States marine corps, signed by Major A. S. Lenore, assistant adjutant, and authority to arrest Benike signed by Col. Littleton W. T. Waller, Joe Hirt was on the trail of the police's star witness during the time when the police court declared him "disappeared" and had the drag-net out for him.

Hirt, one hand in a sling, the other clanking a pair of handcuffs, invaded all the old haunts of Benike, but found him not. It was Benike, the police witness, not Hirt, the police accuser, who had "disappeared."

Benike A Deserter

Major Lenore in his letter, says: "Edwin Theodor Benike enlisted in U. S. Marine Corps on July 25, 1913, as a private for a term of four years, and deserted from Marine Barracks, Navy Yard, Mare Island, Cal., on October 5, 1913. This man is still a deserter at large and amenable to arrest and trial by naval court martial."

A copy of the Bertillon certificate describing Benike, with which the marine corps provided the La Crosse police department some time ago, was enclosed with the letter.

BURGLARS ATTEMPT RAID ON PLUMBERS

Robbery of the Baker-Niebuhr Plumbing company's establishment, Fifth and Jay streets, early this morning was foiled by J. T. Brogan, night watchman.

Brogan was making his nightly inspection of back doors and had stepped into the alley near the side door of the plumbing shop, when he heard someone run towards Fifth street. He saw a man, but just before Brogan saw the man, he stepped on a piece of sheet tin lying on the ground which rattled. This noise scared the marauder.

Brogan found the side door wide open. The lock had been picked. Nothing in the place was missing.

TUG IN TROUBLE

SHEBOYGAN, Wis., March 4.—The tug Hattie L., of Racine, proceeded to Manitowish, Mich., today after having given the Sheboygan life-savers their first work of the season late yesterday. The tug's crank-shaft broke when she was two miles off the local breakwater. She signalled for aid. The life-savers and the Peter B. Reiss responded. The life-savers kept the Hattie L. off the rocks until the Reiss arrived and towed her to harbor.

DARNELL TO MILWAUKEE

CHICAGO, March 4.—Rev. James Morrison Darnell, marrying dominie, was today ordered removed to Milwaukee to stand trial on a white slave charge. He was indicted there last week, on the allegation that he transported Ruth Soper, Owatonna, Minn. girl, from one state to another for immoral purposes. Darnell's lawyers' one plea that his removal be postponed until Saturday was granted.

NOTED SWINDLER CAUGHT

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 4.—Danny LeBar, alleged to be wanted by police here to answer charges of various swindles, including the famous wire-tapping swindle by which hundreds of Iowa farmers were defrauded, is in jail here today. He bumped into Sheriff Adlam as the latter was taking a train from the city.

Forty Thousand Teutons Narrowly Miss Capture but Establish Orderly Retreat

FIGHTING WAS OF DESPERATE SORT

German General in Masterly Manner Covers Withdrawal from Vicinity of Przasnysz

BERLIN, via Wireless to London, March 4.—Forty thousand German troops narrowly escaped capture or annihilation by the Russians in the recent fighting around Przasnysz, it was admitted at the war office today. Only by the most desperate fighting and by forced marches did the Germans extricate themselves from an extremely dangerous position.

Following the Germans' victory over the Russians near the outskirts of Przasnysz, a single army corps advanced eastward from the town. Russian forces numbering 120,000 closed in on the kaiser's troops from the east and southeast.

For a whole day a bloody conflict was waged in the marshes, the Slavs attempting to surround the German corps whose position was most critical.

Toward night the Germans cut their way back toward Przasnysz. They were forced to abandon their wounded.

The Germans who had stormed Przasnysz, in the meantime had been forced to retire before superior forces, falling back upon Mlava. The retreating army corps found itself still threatened by Russian hordes but maintained an orderly retreat, despite the fact that it was outnumbered three to one. Near Mlava, German reinforcements were brought up and the Russian advance halted.

The Russian victory in this region is without the slightest importance, the war office asserted today. It cannot be compared to the recent storming of Przasnysz when the Germans took 10,000 prisoners. Petrograd, it was asserted, is making the most of this and other unimportant gains to divert public attention from the disastrous rout of the Slavs in the Mazurian lakes.

FAIR DIRECTORS SUCCEED SELVES

Association Is Out of Debt and Has Small Surplus to Start 1915 Exposition Here

Thomas H. Spence, John P. Salzer and William H. Tarbox will succeed themselves as directors of the La Crosse Interstate fair. There will be a fair this year at dates later to be fixed by the directors. Election of officers of the fair will be held at the next meeting of the directors.

The above business matters pertaining to the fair were disposed of by the La Crosse Interstate Fair association last night following a dinner of the directors at the Stoddard. C. S. Van Auken, secretary of the association read his report of last year's fair, indicating that the fair had received in 1914 $22,962.52 and is ready for business with $70.44 on hand. Of the amount received the state appropriated $5,000 and donations of $1,204 were acknowledged. Old bills left over from 1913 amounting to $339.64 were paid so the fair is now out of debt.

SMOKY CITY BANK FAILS TO OPEN

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 4.—The German National bank, of Pittsburgh, located at 600 Wood street, one of the largest institutions in the city, doing a general banking business, failed to open its doors this morning. Shortly before 10 o'clock J. W. F. Eversman, the cashier, issued a statement saying that the directors held a meeting last night and because of business conditions and uncertainty regarding much of the bank's paper, decided to close. He declared that they expected to be able to pay depositors in full.

W. W. Ramsey is the president of the bank, which has a capital of $500,000. According to the latest statement the total deposits were $4,000,000.

PRESIDENT CAN'T DECLARE WAR OR START AN EMBARGO

Measure Interpreted to Mean Only That He May Stop Misuse of Our Ports

MANY CONSIGNMENTS ARE TRICKS

Ships Ostensibly Bound for Neutral Ports Have Transferred Cargoes to Belligerents

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Shortly before 1 p. m. the house finally passed and sent to the president the resolution, as amended by the senate, giving him sweeping authority to use all armed and naval forces to enforce this nation's neutrality.

Administration officials today denied with considerable emphasis the intimation that the joint resolution passed by both houses early today giving the president power to enforce neutrality carried with it authority to lay embargoes or declare war.

It was stated that all that the state department wanted—for it was at its behest that congress acted—was the executive be empowered to prevent the misuse of United States ports by belligerents.

"Tricks" That Are Vain

It is admitted that ships have cleared from both the eastern and western ports of the United States for destinations that they were never expected to reach and that they have trans-shipped coal, provisions and other supplies to warships and auxiliary cruisers of both Germany and England on the high seas. Under the new regulation this will be impossible. Where the president has the slightest suspicion that any such plan is intended he may withhold clearance papers.

Authority Limited

As originally drafted, the resolution could have been construed as authorizing the president to place an embargo on all exports of war materials by directing that clearance papers be withheld. The house passed this resolution, but the senate characterized it as too drastic and amended it to provide that vessels carrying supplies and the like could only be held up where the collector "had reason to believe" the cargoes were not intended to be taken to the ports contained in the manifest.

President Wilson today signed the resolution. By its authority he may direct collectors of customs to withhold clearance papers to any vessel he has reason to believe intends to carry cargoes of munitions or supplies to belligerent warships on the high seas.

In this form both houses passed the resolution and sent it to the president for his signature.

Mark Time Today

The state department marked time today in the international situation. Germany's reply to America's latest note was at hand but it was decided no course could be mapped out until England also was heard from. Some concessions were expected from the British but no confirmation of the allies' starvation plan for Germany.

PATENTS AND POLLY

BY MOLLY McMASTER

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Crawford was flustered. As he mounted the steps leading to his boarding house he realized that he had lost the small model of his patent and that the knowledge in no way worried him. He had no doubt left it in the subway train that had carried him homeward from the financier's office.

However, since the thing was not worth financing and putting on the market, Crawford didn't care what happened to his patent. All he did know was that he would not spend another cent nor yet another atom of brain energy trying to invent egg boilers or any other kind of boiler. He had banked rather heavily on the outcome of his visit to the financier, but the expectations had ended. Crawford would have to make his future save his $20 a week. His dreams of sudden and vast wealth brought about by a startling demand for his patent egg boiler vanished into the past, even as his model itself had lost itself in the subway. Crawford hoped it had fallen beneath the wheels and been crushed to powder. He laughed bitterly and could not remember, so gloomy was his attitude, that the great financier had mentioned that a slight amount of added thought spent on the patent would not result in a most successful egg boiler.

She was far too weary to ponder on the exact nature of the thing she had found, but knew it to be something for kitchen use. It might be a baby feeder or even a grill of some kind. Later, when she had cooked her evening meal in the tiny kitchenette her flat boasted, she would no doubt have sufficient brain energy to fathom the character of her find. For the present she closed her eyes—they were strangely luminous—and robbed the gentleman opposite of the pleasure of watching them. He, also a tired totter of Wall street, had been resting his own eyes unobservedly on the beauty of the weary little worker. John Galsworth was more than ever regretful that so many women were forced to enter the field of labor.

"An egg boiler," she mused. "I wonder if it's any good or just like the thousands of other egg boilers." Curiosity got the better of her and she tripped lightly into her kitchen to experiment with Jim Crawford's patent and one of her sixty-cents-a-dozen eggs.

"I will have to use this for salad tomorrow," she told herself by way of apology for her extravagance. Using great care so that no harm would come to the model, Polly put in her egg. She felt certain that the person who had lost the patent would claim it by advertisement, and she did not want to damage it. To her interested eye the thing seemed to be one of those labor-saving devices so dear to the domestic woman's heart. Polly had many little contrivances that saved her both footprints and time. When there is adequate kitchen space the most modern equipment is none too modern.

The indicator on the egg boiler snapped and Polly removed the egg, only to find it half boiled. She sighed disappointedly. The patent had seemed so promising, yet it failed because of the indicator.

"Surely it could be quite easily adjusted," she pondered while she cleaned the model and dried it carefully. "There would be one of these in every kitchen if it could be easily regulated to any number of minutes. All the girls in the office would have one. I wonder," the continuation of Polly's query was carried on in the small sitting room, whither she went with Crawford's patent. Her luminous eyes were half closed, so close was her scrutiny of the egg boiler. She sat down under the light, her busy brain hard at work.

When a week had passed and no one had advertised for the model Polly became impatient. She had perfected the boiler until it worked like a charm, and it irritated her to realize that the inventor was so lacking in interest as to put forward no claim for his patent. It should be on the market, yet she was not free to go to the financier in the office building in which she worked and put it before him. She had heard that John Galsworth was always ready to finance anything good.

It was Polly herself who finally advertised for the person who had left a small package on the subway containing an invention. Crawford, from whom the shades of gray were gradually lifting, happened to see the advertisement and went forthwith in search of his lost property.

It was perforce after business hours that he went. Polly Woodward had scarcely tidied up herself and her flat before her bell sounded. Crawford was decidedly pleased that he had lost his model when he beheld Polly in the doorway.

"You can make stacks of money out of that," she told him when she had drawn him into the cozy sitting room. "It only required a simple bit of regulating. You won't mind my showing you, will you?"

Crawford wouldn't have minded anything she chose to do, but he merely listened attentively to her cure of the century, the new way, the sure, painless, simple way. It makes a fellow really feel foolish after he's used toe-eating salves, corn-biting ointments, toe-bundling bandages, blood-bringing razors, knives, files, scissors, jabbers and what-nots, when he uses just two drops of "GETS-IT," and sees his corn vanish. The difference is divine. Just try it. You won't wince when you put your shoes in the morning. "GETS-IT" is sure, "gets" any corn, callus, wart or bunion.

"By Jove! My head is solid ivory—not to have seen that," he said with a splendid dash of color in his cheeks and sparkle to his eyes. "But after all," he added quietly, looking at her, "it takes a woman's head to figure out these necessities for the home." He glanced wistfully about the lovely room that was tastefully but inexpensively furnished, and sighed.

Polly Woodward laughed outright. "Poor man," she said softly. "I pity any one who has to live in a boarding house. But," she added, quickly and joyfully, "don't you see that your patent will make a nice home for you if you just go about placing it properly?"

"One financier turned me down the day I lost it," Crawford told her. "There is a Mr. John Galsworth in our office building," Polly began hesitatingly, "I feel sure he would be interested in it."

"You are taking far too much trouble," interrupted Crawford. "If you will agree to take half the profit I will be glad to get the thing off my mind. We are busy at the office just now." He arose because he had already trespassed on her time. "The thing was useless without your improvement."

When he had gone Polly had time to realize that Crawford was most generous and that his personality was decidedly pleasing. After that she skipped out to the telephone in the corner chemist's and made an appointment with John Galsworth.

The big financier received her the following day in his luxurious office. His philanthropy was well known. Polly approached him with no fear and put her model before him.

Galsworth remembered having rested tired eyes on her beauty one evening in the subway. Her magnetism, together with the undoubted value of the egg boiler which she demonstrated to him, quite worked the charm.

When she had left the office Galsworth sighed. He felt the girl's presence even when she had disappeared from sight and again regretted the fact that women must struggle in the business world save in this particular instance. He rejoiced that Polly Woodward had entered his life.

And Polly returned to her office with a light heart. She went immediately to the telephone and told Crawford the good news. He was so delighted that he asked her to lunch with him by way of celebration, and Polly agreed. She was glad that she had worn her new blouse to the office that day.

When she returned to her office,

New Evidence Constantly Being Published

Since the long succession of La Crosse reports were first published in the local press there has been no looking back. La Crosse evidence continues to pour in, and—better still—those whose reports were first published many years ago, verify all they said in a most hearty and unmistakable way. Read the experience of Mrs. H. Hermanson, 1125 S. Third St. She says:

"I had dizzy and nervous spells and my kidneys were weak. My back ached intensely. I used different remedies, but nothing helped me until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. I was soon rid of the pain and other kidney ailments. Another of my family has used Doan's Kidney Pills for a weak back and kidneys and has been cured. The endorsement I have given Doan's Kidney Pills before, holds good. Whenever I have the least sign of disordered kidneys, I take a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills and they fix me up all right."

Debate on Heim Bill Disfranchising Students Occupies the Assembly

MADISON, Wis., March 4.—The bill relating to compulsory school attendance was killed by the assembly yesterday. This bill provided for countenancing absence from school provided students were attending confirmation classes.

Bill 51A, relating to the state board of health, cutting the annual appropriation from $40,000 to $20,000, was referred to the finance committee.

The debate on the Heim bill intended to disenfranchise students of the state educational institutions was opened by Assemblyman Crosby of Clark. The bill has been recommended for indefinite postponement. He said that nearly all of the states had restricted the rights of the floating population and went at length into the subject. Assemblyman Ostlie of Eau Claire, vigorously defended the right of the students of the state to vote.

"The qualifications for a voter in Wisconsin are one year's residence in the state, ten days in the precinct, and not being an idiot," said Ostlie. "This gives any tramp in the state the right to vote. And this assembly is considering disenfranchising intelligent and cultured young men from their rights as citizens of Wisconsin. The bill is a joke."

"The most nefarious piece of legislation ever presented in the Wisconsin senate."

This was the statement made in the senate this morning, by Senator Bray, regarding the Ackley water-power bill.

Senator Bray yesterday offered a resolution in the senate providing for the appearance of Prof. E. A. Gilmore before the senate to give his ideas regarding the Wisconsin waterpower situation. The resolution met with spirited opposition because of the alleged implication in it that the "interests" were trying to put one over on the senate and that advice from outside sources was necessary. The debate was continued this morning and the resolution finally referred to the committee on state affairs. It was at this point that Senator Bray made a vigorous speech denouncing the pending bill.

A resolution made by Senator Monk providing for the appearance of members of the university faculty before the legislature or the legislative committees was passed by a vote of 18 to 16. Heretofore the faculty men have refused to appear on orders of the university deans because of the alleged activity of the university in state politics.

after a most happy lunch hour spent with Crawford, she rejoiced for the second time that she had worn her new blouse. John Galsworth had telephoned her. He wanted her to have dinner with him if she was not tired of talking business. There was much to be discussed about the egg boiler.

And if at dinner there were red roses on the table for Polly, and roses in Polly's cheeks for Galsworth and only a short talk on the subject of egg boilers, no one minded overmuch. The evening passed with wonderful promise of happiness in its trail, for Polly and Galsworth had found one another.

Crawford went up that evening to the home of the sweetheart who had been waiting impatiently to hear the news of the egg boiler. But all Crawford did was to take her into his arms.

"Can you be ready for that trip in about four weeks?" he asked her,

The Cow Might Be Able to Jump Over the Moon.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

How the Cow Jumped Over the Moon.

"HEY, diddle, diddle; the cat and the fiddle; the cow jumped over the moon!" sang daddy as the kiddies clambered upon his knees. "I don't believe that cow ever did jump over the moon!" cried Evelyn.

"What, don't believe what is actually in print?" laughed daddy. "Why, that cat with its fiddle has been playing music as the cow jumped over the moon for more years than I can remember, and the little dog has been laughing his funny laugh—yes, dogs do laugh; I've told you so before—and the plate has been running after the spoon, too, all that time."

"Don't believe any of that? Well, well," said daddy gravely, "you just ask mamma if plates and spoons haven't a way of running and climbing, too, because they are often found in the ash barrel."

"Oh, well, Nora put em there!" explained Jack in a superior sort of way.

Daddy's eyes twinkled. "I'm just going to prove to you that a cow can jump over the moon if she tries real hard, and so can you and so can I if we are only smart enough."

"Oh, daddy!" The kiddies wanted to believe, but they just couldn't, so daddy must convince them.

"Well, you see, kiddies, the earth turns around on its axis every twenty-four hours, and in the course of a year it revolves 365 times. It's fair to suppose that during those 365 days the cow might be able to jump 'over' the moon."

"Oh!" cried the kiddies, round eyed. "Oh, daddy, we never thought of that!"

"But you haven't told us yet how the cat learned to play the fiddle, daddy," said Jack.

"Oh, fiddle-dee-dee," cried daddy; "Isn't it time to go to bed?" "No, daddy; not for four minutes yet, and if you don't 'plain right away how the cat plays the fiddle we'll pull your hair, daddy. We will, we will!" shouted Evelyn gleefully.

"Well, I'll tell you," began daddy rather lamely. It must be confessed. "There was the cat, and then there was the fiddle, and you see, after all, the nursery fiddle doesn't say that the cat played the fiddle. It only says 'the cat and the fiddle!'" cried daddy, with much glee.

"Now kiddies must go to bed."

PORK BAR'L BILL CUT TEN MILLION AND PUT THROUGH

Measure Sent to President as Congress Rushes Into Closing Hours of Session on High

WASHINGTON, March 4. — The rivers and harbors appropriation bill, reduced from $35,000,000 to $25,000,000, plus $5,000,000 extra of unexpended money, was finally disposed of, and sent to the president this afternoon.

Congress' clutch was thrown into high speed today toward final adjournment at noon Thursday. All thought of an extra session was abandoned. Fate of three big appropriation bills, rural credits and the ship purchase measure hung in the balance. Four others were passed and signed by the president last night.

Remaining for final disposition before adjournment were the army, postoffice, agricultural, rivers and harbor, Indian and general deficiency appropriation bills.

Conferees struggled toward a compromise on rural credits.

The ship purchase bill was stranded in the senate, with failure almost certain.

Deadlocks on the agricultural and postoffice appropriation measures threatened their failure, too, with necessity for emergency resolutions to provide funds.

The rivers and harbors measure provided for no new work; only for continuing projects under way.

the legislature before the time for filing bills had terminated; the assemblyman is open to suggestions
and amendments, and has in mind
some better method of administering the La Crosse water works.Upon this phase of the problem with which his measure deals, Mr.
Kurtenacker says:The state railway commission has its hands full. It can give us help. It is a commission of good men. It may even go to appeal to when needed. But it ought to be more satisfactory to have authority right on the ground to handle local problems as they arise. You can't run a private La Crosse business from Madison so
well as you can run it in La Crosse,
and with experts in charge, the same
rule should apply to a local public utility. It should be run by experts,
of course. I certainly do not favor any other kind of management. I should like to see it operated right and put on the right basis as to its finances.One hardly sees wherein, if it would be advantageous to take the municipal water plant out of the hands of the commission on the ground that "you can't run a private La Crosse business from Madison so well as you can run it in La Crosse,"It would be less advisable to deprive the commission of authority over the lighting plant or the street car property, upon exactly the same ground.The assemblyman seems to have fallen into the error of thinking that
the commission is actually running
the water plant in the sense of management. Of course, as a matter of fact, it is not expected that the commission will deal with the details of administration, nor will it interfere
with an expertly competent administration of the water works. The commission's authority is a safeguard against bad local management. Without disturbing the authority of the commission, Mr. Kurtenacker can proceed to the matter of legislation
that will enable La Crosse to attempt, under most favorable conditions, to secure able local management. Then, in the event that at any time the local management fails, we shall have the privilege of appealing
to the commission for aid. The condition today is that the Kurtenacker
bill would place the water plant under the absolute control of authority which "inexpert" inadequately describes.Perhaps Mr. Kurtenacker eventually will accept this view, and from that point proceed to the truly valuable service he has in mind for La Crosse. To the last period we agree with him that there should be some stronger and more expert local agency for the administration of our water works.THE TRAIL OF HIRT GROW'S HOTThe dead, dull absence of any effort to get the facts about matters relating to police performances is enlivened by the reckless and animated effort to get Joe Hirt.It ought to be easy. The police admit that they know a lot of damning things about him. Aside from the interesting question of why,
knowing these said unpronounceable
things, they showed no interest in getting him until he evinced an inclination to get them, the hilarious spectacle has little significance.Now this is not a defense of Hirt.
Far be it from us to defend one who has dared the lese majeste of speaking ill of the Handsomest. Merely it is an inquiry, out of the dust of the pursuit of Hirt, as to why from all
the blue-coated crusade there was not detailed a single helmet to get the fugitive deserter who starred as witness-factotum in the exciting trial of the complaining witness. Perhaps not a single helmet could be spared lest,
in the apprehension of a mere deserter, the state's informant escape.Oh, very well! Let go the hue and
cry. Perhaps, when the deep-mouthed bay is stilled, it will be found that someone has got the bar by the tail.WE'RE ALL FOR THE RAYMONDSNews of the elevation of E. C. Raymond to the district bench of Wyoming is received in La Crosse with gratification. It is pleasant to know that a young progressive schooled in Wisconsin is helping make history in
a sister commonwealth. A discriminating lawyer, Mr. Raymond will lend strength to the Wyoming bench,
and the charming Mrs. Raymond will contribute to the graces of the Wyoming official family. If the cares of
his new trust shall not deprive us
of the annual visit of these interesting people, there will be nothing to
mar the pleasure with which La Crosse contemplates the well-earned preferment of Judge Raymond.

Thoughts on Seeing the Back Yard

The snow has gone
And once again
I stand beside
The window pane
And see the spot
Where bloomed the rose,
And where the maid
The tinware throws.Where once a sheet
Of crystal snow
Hid everything
That lay below
Now all is bare
And I may scan
Each empty corn
And sardine can.And yonder lies
The wrench I missed
Where once I held
It in my fist,
And there's the hammer
That I sought
And vowed that in
The house I'd brought.How camethose papers
From the press
To strew my yard
With such distress?
I vow that all
Was spick and span
The day that first
The snow began.When from my life
The snow shall pass,
And bare of cover
Is the grass
I wonder will
My work appear
So very desolate
And drear?Will what I once Thought clean and neat
Be marred with
Refuse of the street?
And will the place
Where I have toiled,
Be with such grim
Disorder spoiled?If so, I faint
Would pass away
When all the flowers
Are bright and gay
And sink into
My final rest
When my life-yard
Is at its best.

Chief Justice Stung

A firm of shady outside London
brokers was prosecuted for swindling. In acquitting them the court
with great severity said:
"There is not sufficient evidence to convict you, but if any one wishesto know my opinion of you I hope that he will refer to me."Next day the firm's advertisement appeared in every available medium
with the following well displayed:
"Reference as to probity, by special permission, the lord chief justice of England."

Was a Prize Liar

This is said to be a day of spe-
paign a man approached a candidate and stated that for a small consideration he would be willing to work for his election.

"What can you do?" he was asked.

"Why, sir," said the man, "I can
start more lies on your opponent
than he and his friends can explain
away during all the rest of the campaign. When it comes to starting
lies on a candidate I acknowledge no
man as my equal."

Advantage in Care

It was a cheap restaurant, and two men had just taken their seats at the same table. A waiter came bustling up.

"Your order, gents?"

"Give me a boiled egg," said one of the men."And give me one, too," said the other, "and see to it that it's fresh.""All right, gentlemen, certainly," said the waiter.And then, stepping to the speaking tube, he called out:
"Two boiled eggs—one of them
fresh!"

Oh, Wild Sound Waves

Conversation on a country road:
"What makes you sit up there and toot the horn?""Charley told me to," replied the fair one; "so I won't hear the things he says while he's fixing the machine."

Sounded Like It

"Say, young man," asked the old lady at the ticket office, "what time does the next train pull in here, and how long does it stay?""From two to two to two-two," was the curt reply."Well, I declare! Be you the whistle?"

All Feet Small

The customer who had just bought a pair of shoes was inclined to be society, and wishing to "draw out"
the clerk, said:
"I suppose you meet many kinds of people?""No; they're all alike," said the shoe clerk. "Every woman in here thinks she's a Cinderella."

Again he called the usher.

"Take this to Joe, and tell him to have it played," he ordered. "Anything else you'd like, Miss Molly?""I'm afraid to mention a wish for fear I'd get it," she laughed, in more or less embarrassment; but Fern, who was having the time of her life, giggled, and telling him to recall the boy, added a favorite of her own to the musical program."You can have a good time most any place," Sledge complimented her, with a growing fondness for Molly's friend. "You're a nice kid. I ought to have invited your gentleman friend along.""I don't see who it would be," laughed Fern. "Molly knows so many nice chaps, but the most of them are such boys.""Excuse me a minute, girls," begged Sledge, and unluckily himself from the background."Where now has he gone?" wondered Molly, half amused and half apprehensive."He's probably noticed that some girls have candy," surmised Fern, who had come to believe him infallible. "He'll bring back a ton of it.""I hope he isn't going to order the spotlights turned this way," snickered Molly. "He'd do it, I think. He's capable of anything.""As long as it's nice," admitted Fern. "I'll bet you never had a man treat you with more respect.""That's true enough. He's rather a surprise to me in that. He's a fine friend to have, Fern."Just as the overture struck up Sledge returned to the box, followed by a large-handed man of about thirty-five, whose face and neck were red from much cheerful ex-posure to the weather. He had a merry blue eye and pompadour hair, and he wore diamond shirt studs and cuff buttons."Tommy Reeler, girls," introduced Sledge. "Miss Fern Burbank, Tommy.
Miss Molly Marley."Mr. Reeler, in great heartiness and in friendliness all unafraid, shook hands with both the girls, and sat down by Fern."I'm in luck," he confided to the crowd. "I was feeling lonesome enough to take a drink when Ben bug me up and slipped me the news that he had a girl for me. How do you like our town, Miss Fern?""I love it," returned Fern, not daring to look at Molly, whose brimming eyes she knew to be fixed upon her.Under the crescendo of the music,
the conversation became paired off, and Sledge, with complacent self-approbation, watched the couple in front of him."Tommy's a right guy," he confided to Molly. "Big contractor; paying and city buildings. Wife died last winter.""That was too bad!" responded Molly sympathetically."She was due," declared Sledge.
"I'd a' killed her.""Was she so dreadful?" inquired Molly, forcing her share of the conversation."A souse," grunted Sledge. "Tommy don't touch it, but she got a different kind of a Heinz on every night.""Drank?" guessed Molly, trying to remember for Fern's benefit."For the family," corroborated Sledge, "and all this time Tommy a decent guy. He deserves a good woman, but he don't get to meet 'em.
He'd be a great pal for your little friend, if she can nail him.""I never heard Fern express a preference for widowers," she suggested."He's the same as not," Sledge assured her. "There's no kids. Tommy's a grand boy.""Me for a blonde," Tommy Reeler unintentionally explained to the audience, and before she could stop it, the clear silver ringle of Fern blended with the piccolo obligato.Reeler looked around at Sledge with a broad grin, and nodded his head emphatically in the direction of Fern.

"Having a nice party?" asked

Fortified Tires
Now in the LightThe supreme test of a tire is to hold top place—the place in the sun—and for years. Goodyear tires have done that. Long they have led, both in sales and prestige.Men expect much of the top-place tire. They look for a super-tire in it. Any seeming fault, due to mishap or misuse, becomes a defect in this glare.But Goodyear Fortified Tires, after years in this light, hold higher place than ever. Last year men bought 1,479,883 Goodyears of the pleasure-car type alone. That's about one tire for every car in use.Isn't best average service, as proved by Goodyear supremacy, the right way to judge a tire?

Lower Prices

On February 1 Goodyear made the third big price reduction in two years. The three total 45%.Yet the tires are constantly bettered. In five costly ways—each exclusive to Goodyear—our Fortified Tires excel any other tire built.
And each is a great trouble-saver.

They mean for you tire content.

They mean most for your money, because of our matchless output. For your own sake, try them. The following Goodyear Service Stations will

Who Is Wrong?

Is it the Goodyear user, whose choice is confirmed by some ers? Or is it the man who still assumes that another tire is better?

Molly softly, bending forward; but Fern was speechless.The curtain rose, and the play began, and Sledge, bending knotted brows upon the stage, sat decently aloof. If anybody liked this sort of thing, far be it from him to interfere with their pleasure. Between the acts, however, he came right back on the job. He arranged for Tommy and himself to take the girls out to see the new water-works plant on the following day, and to witness, as balcony patrons, on the following night, a barn dance of the West End Club.He planned a Country Club dinner for the day after, and then, reaching nonchalantly into his waistcoat pocket, he dropped into Molly's lap a glittering bauble, which looked like a glass hickory-nut."Take that, down to Duvay's and have it fitted to your finger," he directed.

She picked it up incredulously. It couldn't be real!

"Why, it's a diamond!" she gasped, as it lay flashing and gleaming in her hand, and she saw the perfect cutting and wonderful fire of it. The realization startled her so that she almost dropped it."It had better be, or somebody goes to jail," he informed her. "That rock set me back the price of a house and lot.""But, Mr. Sledge, I can't accept this," she earnestly assured him.

CHICAGO, March 4.—Champion Freddie Welsh and speedy Charley White today were nearer a twenty round battle than they ever have been before. He said in a long distance talk with the Englishman's manager, Harry Pollock, the latter virtually agreed to accept a guarantee of $12,500 and 40 per cent of the gate receipts for a twenty round go at Denver, New Orleans or Havana, Cuba, with the Chicagoans.

"Pollock at first demanded $15,000 guarantee and 50 per cent," said Lewis today. "Then the champion said he would accept $12,500 and 40 per cent. I expect the papers clinching the bout to be signed within a few days."

LIQUOR QUESTION IS BIG ISSUE IN MINNESOTA HOUSE

Concurrent Resolution Submitting Amendment to the Constitution to a Vote Is Postponed

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 4.—(Special.)—Taken unawares by the introduction of a concurrent resolution submitting to the people in the fall of 1916 a prohibition amendment to the constitution, the house Tuesday came dangerously near finding itself face to face with the necessity of voting on the measure and for more than an hour a scene of intense excitement prevailed.

Postponed for Week

Finally the opponents of the resolution, becoming aroused to the situation, succeeded in postponing consideration until next week, but it was a close call.

The resolution which stirred up all the troubles was introduced by Representative John A. Larimore of Minneapolis, who voted against county option. Representative Levi M. Davis of Long Prairie, who also opposed the county option bill, joined with Mr. Larimore.

Favor Referendum

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 4.—(Special.)—By a vote of 106 to 12 the house today passed a bill providing for submission of the initiative and referendum amendment defeated at the November elections. There was little opposition to the bill, but lengthy discussion regarding several amendments offered by Representative Christianson of Dawson. These amendments, Mr. Christianson said, were intended to strengthen the bill.

St. Paul-Minn. A Unit

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 4.—(Special.)—Railroad freight rates to and from St. Paul and Minneapolis can be made the same by the state railroad and warehouse commission if bills introduced in the senate and house yesterday amendatory to the Cashman distance tariff laws are passed. Under present conditions St. Paul, Minneapolis and the Midway Transfer are separate points taking different rates.

Six Counties Dry

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 4.—(Special.)—Dr. George B. Safford, superintendent of the Minnesota Anti-Saloon league, said yesterday that preliminaries for the holding of county option elections in six counties have been started, and the same steps will be taken in ten other counties within a few days.

He prophesied that elections will be called in more than twenty counties by June 1.

The six counties already in the fight are Mower, Carver, Wilkins, Clay, Koochiching and Kanabec.

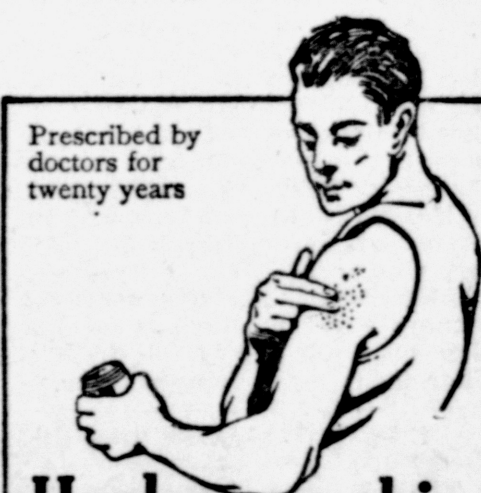

One-Senator Bill Up

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 4.—(Special.)—A "one-senator" bill reducing the number of senators and representatives and providing for reapportionment was introduced into the senate today by Senator Duxbury. The bill reduced the number of senators from 67 to 35, and the number of representatives to 75. There are 131 representatives.

Vote to Repeal Law

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 4.—(Special.)—By a vote of 39 to 25 the state senate yesterday voted to repeal the Elwell road law.

R. C. Dunn, father of the Dunn road law, asked to be excused from voting when the roll call started. Leaders on the repeal objected to excusing him, but he was allowed to pass the vote.

LOVE

The plot of "Runaway June" contains the strongest love element ever shown in a photoplay.

MONEY

SUSPENSE

You hold your breath in wonder—in awe—and impatience. You wait in breathless intent as you watch the scenes flit by.

HATRED

The underlying motive of all crime—hatred—prompts Ned and spurs him on to seek revenge on his arch enemy, the man with the black Vandyke.

REVENGE

Revenge is sweet—but it leads to bitter remorse—to heart aches and pain. Revenge is in Ned Warner's heart and it must be appeased.

George Randolph Chester wrote the story, and as the plot develops you will be more mystified and anxious to see the end. You will go home pleased and happy and glad you saw the pictures.

The story will be printed in the La Crosse Tribune every week.

MISSION CHILDREN IN SLEIGH RIDE SEE LA CRESCENT

Seventy-five children of the La Crosse Rescue Mission were made happy yesterday afternoon by members of the Masonic order and women of the Eastern Star.

EMBALMERS WATCH EXPERT UNDERTAKER

Actual post mortem demonstration of physical functions was made by C. L. Truesdell of Milwaukee, dean of the Johnson School of Embalming, before the final session yesterday afternoon of the district meeting of undertakers and funeral directors in the Elks' hall. The demonstration was attended by upwards of twenty undertakers and six nurses from a local hospital.

Many of the undertakers attended the lectures given by Mr. Truesdell on anatomy and the science in embalming. An applied knowledge of the science of anatomy and physiology, Mr. Truesdell said, is now required by all colleges of embalming and sentiment is for the application of the requirement to assistants.

OILED RAGS BURN IN COUNTY JAIL

Damage amounting to $300 resulted from a fire starting from oiled cloths at the county jail at noon today. A floor in one of the parlors was being oiled when the rags being used in the operation caught on fire. The room was filled with smoke. Fire department No. 1 responded to the alarm.

COCOANUT OIL FINE FOR WASHING HAIR

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, the less soap you use the better.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulisified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulisified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

WAR RESOLUTIONS DIE IN MADISON

Bosshard Arms Embargo Memorial to Congress and Other War Suggestions Turned Down Today

MADISON, Wis., March 4.—After three hours of debate on war resolutions, all of which were indefinitely postponed, the senate this morning clearly established a state policy of absolute neutrality.

The discussion was, at times, highly colored. "Playing politics" was a charge that ran through a portion of the debate.

The resolutions killed were: By Senator Bosshard, memorializing congress to prevent the shipment of arms and contraband of war. By Senator Bray, extending to President Woodrow Wilson the sympathy and encouragement of the people of Wisconsin in these days of trial. By Assemblyman Hansen memorializing congress to take steps to bring about peace. By Assemblyman Vint to prevent the shipment of arms, etc., into the war zone.

The big fight came on the Bosshard resolution to prevent the shipment of war munitions abroad. He referred to the La Follette peace resolution in congress, and read from a La Crosse speech by Gov. Philipp in which the governor said "that it is our duty to cease to supply munitions of war to European countries."

Senator Bray offered a substitute for the Bosshard resolution, which he said "tells the truth."

The Bray resolution set forth that the shipment of arms from this country into Europe was done to the disadvantage of Germany. Bray denied the Bosshard charge that he was trying to inject comedy into the state. He said that he viewed the subject from the angle of a plain American and referred to the Bosshard resolution as pro-German.

Senator Perry in a reply to Senator Bosshard said: "I want to make it clear that the stalwart wing is not butting into this thing."

The Bosshard resolution was killed by a vote of 12 to 16.

The senate adjourned at noon.

Mr. Kemson had lived in La Crosse since 1871. He was a native of Norway. Surviving him is his widow and one daughter, Mrs. C. M. Granum of Beaulieu, Minn.

URGE PASSAGE OF HIGHER FARE BILL

MADISON, Wis., March 4.—(Special.)—Railroad representatives announced here today that they opened at Oshkosh last night a speaking campaign, which will be carried into every hamlet of the state, in favor of the passage of the two and one-half cent fare law. The speakers invaded the upper end of the Fox River Valley today, speaking at Appleton and other cities. Speeches will be made in Beloit on the same subject on the afternoon of March 5.

The railroad men will present statistics at all of these meetings showing a decrease in earnings of the roads since the two cent fare law was enacted in 1907. The railroads contend that a fare of two and one-half cents will be necessary if the railroads are to be expected to give improved service. Among those in the railroad party urging the fare increase are E. G. Potter of the "Sooy," E. E. Nash and C. A. Cairns of the Northwestern and P. C. Eldridge of the St. Paul system.

Nearly 200 petitions have been presented to the legislature signed by many thousands of people asking that a two and one-half cent fare law be enacted. Only two petitions, offered by Assemblyman Budlong of Marinette county, have been offered in the legislature in opposition to the increase. Many of the petitions ask for an investigation of the matter by the legislature and in two or three instances the petitions have asked that this investigation be carried on by the railroad commission.

Governor Philipp has announced that he will veto the two and one-half cent fare bill if passed. He declares that he does not believe it can secure a favorable vote in both houses of the legislature. The rumor that the railroads would withdraw the bill is denied by Assemblyman E. A. Everett, who offered the bill in the assembly for them. The railroad attorneys say that there is no disposition on their part to discontinue their fight for a fare increase.

BIG SPARTA BOUT DRAWS A HUNDRED FANS FROM HERE

Nearly one hundred and fifty fight fans, many of them members of the old La Crosse Athletic club, are ready to leave at 6:30 tonight on a train chartered especially for the occasion to attend the boxing show at Sparta, headlined by Art Nelson, Sparta light heavyweight, and Kid Monaghan of Chicago, aspirant for heavyweight honors.

E. G. Seaton and others started the campaign for the special train a week ago today. By Saturday half of the required number of names had been procured and on Monday it was announced that the original mark of seventy-five had been overshot by more than twenty-five names.

This afternoon prospects were that twice the number of fans originally considered would make the trip to Sparta. Stops to be made at West Salem and Bangor are expected to result in the addition of twenty-five or more people to the company.

First Show of Club

The show tonight will be the first held by the newly organized Sparta Athletic club in which Art Nelson is prime mover. The slate shows three bouts, aggregating twenty-four rounds, with two Sparta men and one fighter from Warrens, Jimmy Wagner, on the card.

The principal go of the evening between Nelson and Monaghan is expected to be spirited. The Spartan, after weeks of training, appears fit as a dollar for the mix, advances from Sparta state. Monaghan, although somewhat of an unknown quantity around this section of the country, has a big reputation in Chicago circles.

ing too busy to vent their feelings in the time-honored manner. About 4:30 this morning the house held a brief song fest, Representative Conroy of New York singing two solos which brought storms of applause. Then the members rendered "Old Black Joe," and other popular songs.

The ship purchase bill is dead. Administration senators, threatened with continuation of the republican filibuster, did not plan another attempt to revive it. The bill dies in conference.

Rural credits legislation also is dead. Instead a congressional commission is advised to investigate the whole subject and report to the next congress by January 1, 1916.

Seamen's Bill Still Lives

Immediately following the passage of the La Follette seamen's bill the president signed it without hesitation. It had been rumored that he would veto it.

The fight on the Indian bill began at 3 a. m. in the senate when the conference report was called up. Senator Gronna objected to items for Indian attorneys and allowance to certain Indian tribes. Senator La Follette also promised vigorous objection to the elimination of Choctaw Indians of Mississippi from participation in Oklahoma tribal funds.

"Private Bills" Go Through

Numbers of minor "private" bills were passed by both branches during the night session.

The house passed the bill providing aid to Alaskan agricultural colleges, approved dropping impeachment charges against former Judge Daniel Thew Wright and, as a tribute to the veteran Representative Bartlett of Georgia who retires, passed a bill appropriating $50,000 for a federal building at Forsyth, Ga. Republican Leader Mann paid a tribute to Bartlett's long service and had Bartlett's bill passed as a token of the house's esteem.

President Arrives

President Wilson, accompanied by Secretary J. P. Tumulty, Executive Secretary Rudolph Forster, and his confidential stenographer, reached the capitol shortly after 10 a. m. today.

He proceeded directly to his private office in the senate wing and sent word to the leaders of both houses that he was ready for business.

President Wilson has signed the sundry civil bill, with a $126,922-750 appropriation, and the $6,069-216 fortifications bill.

BORN AS CAESAR INFANT WILL LIVE

For the second time in two weeks, the same La Crosse doctor successfully performed a Caesarian operation in La Crosse today. This time it was performed at the Lutheran hospital.

Mrs. Hans Scheldrup of Palmero, N. D., today became the mother of a healthy son through use of the surgeon's knife. Both Mrs. Scheldrup and the infant will live.

Owing to the unusualness of the operation and the few times it proves successful in saving lives of both mother and infant, the coincidence of the two operations has been noted. Mrs. Michael Deegan of Mound Prairie, was the other woman who submitted to the same surgeon's knife a few days ago.

HEIM BILL LOSES IN THE ASSEMBLY

MADISON, Wis., March 4.—(Special.)—The Heim bill to disfranchise students at educational institutions was defeated in the assembly last night by a strong majority. Prior to the defeat of the original bill, Assemblyman Crosby of Clark county offered a substitute which provided that the fact of the residence of a student at an educational center shall not gain or lose him a residence there. The debate centered on this amendment, which was finally defeated, 57 to 13. The original Heim bill provided that no student shall be allowed to vote at an education center unless he is self-supporting. Lawry in the assembly pronounced this bill unconstitutional, and a substitute was presented which attempted to accomplish the same purpose in a constitutional way.

When the assembly convened last night Assemblyman Julius Hanson of Shawano county attacked the measure, saying if such a bill were enacted the principle would speedily be extended to other occupations and vocations. Assemblyman Minkley, in attacking the bill, said that the wet and dry question was the mainspring back of this proposed legislative action. He said he was opposed to illegal voting but saw in this bill only an attempt to disfranchise persons who would not vote the way certain elements in society wanted them to. Minkley's speech brought such an applause from the galleries that Speaker Whittet threatened to clear the galleries if it were repeated.

The assembly killed the Pieper bill which would practically have repealed the eugenics marriage law. It provided that contracting parties to a marriage need not be physically examined but must sign a statement declaring themselves free from communicable diseases.

By a vote of 68 to 15 the assembly killed the Kent bill to increase the minimum salary of Wisconsin teachers from $40 to $60 a month.

Citizen Brought Home

Another emergency proposition caused by the European war was the necessity of doing something for the tens of thousands of American stranded in Europe by hostilities. Their paper money, and travelers' checks made worthless by the sudden demand for gold, and with many lines of ships held in ports because of the fear of capture, their situation was desperate. Congress passed two appropriation bills to aid in bringing home these unfortunate people.

A number of problems were forced on this congress also by the Mexican troubles. In connection with the landing of marines at Vera Cruz, following the insult to the flag incident, congress rushed through a resolution—the vote in the senate being taken at 3:20 a. m.—justifying the president.

The senate has ratified, during this congress, twenty-six peace treaties with foreign countries some of them being put through after the declaration of war in Europe. Two other important treaties, one with Colombia, paying her $25,000,000 as compensation for Panama, and the other with Nicaragua, paying her $3,000,000 for a naval base in Fonseca Bay and for an option on the Nicaragua canal route, were discussed, but failed to reach a vote on ratification.

Following years of anti-trust agitation, two bills were passed to regulate big business.

One the federal trade commission act, placed industrial corporations under such supervision as the interstate commerce commission exercises over the railroads. With confirmation, just before adjournment, of a majority of the trade board members, the commission will begin work at once. Among its duties, certainly in the president's opinion, will be the drafting of a scientific tariff system. The other law, the Clayton anti-trust act, was aimed particularly at unfair competition and trade methods. It was intended also to clarify the Sherman law's "twilight zone."

M'CORMICK VICTIM OF SCHOOL PADDLE

High school teachers surprise Principal McCormick after school Tuesday in honor of his birthday. All the faculty were present and each department made the chief an appropriate present.

During the fourth period in the morning session the absence of two of the teachers who had no classes was noticed by Mr. McCormick, but he attached no importance to the fact. The teachers had gone down town to purchase the presents which were "put under his plate" at 4:00 o'clock.

After the presents had been reviewed and the "birthday greeting" administered (with a paddle made especially for the occasion in the manual training department), a light lunch of coffee and cake and other dainties was partaken of by the assembled teachers.

wheat showed great weakness, owing to a succession of rumors that kept the pit excited. One rumor was that large orders for war supplies, including ammunition, had been cancelled during the last 48 hours for foreign governments. The trade was also alarmed by the progress being made by the allies in penetrating the Dardanelles, and the traders pictured Russian wheat pouring into western Europe. Offerings of September wheat at large concessions from July took place today.

Corn closed lower, suffering in sympathy with wheat. Oats was materially lower, trailing after the other grains. Provisions remained about steady.

Season for Indoor Track WorkMEN AND CO-EDS HAVE MEETMuch Is Expected of the Team in Events with Other Schools This Spring

With the close of the normal school basketball season near at hand athletes are planning on indulging in another form of sport—that of an indoor spring track and field event. The meet will be held in preparation for the spring outdoor work that will be started as soon as the first peep of spring makes itself apparent.

On April 9 the men and the co-eds are to engage in an indoor meet at the normal school gymnasium. Events for the women will be the thirty yard dash, the high jump from ropes, and regular rope climbing. The men will do the thirty yard dash, the high jump, hand-over-hand rope climbing, the shot put (16 lb.) and wrestling. The plan is to make the men as well as the women engage in all events of their respective classes in an elimination program to select the pick of the athletes. To the winners of each event will be given gold medals.

Silver medals will be presented to the runnersup.

In the spring events the normal school should stand among the top-most teams of the state. Some of the records made in previous years show that fast teams have been developed here and the fact that some of the athletes are still in school makes the school's chances all the more rosier for this year's track team.

Some of the records made at the normal school follow:

The Records

1912—Lee Griffin, 100 dash in 10 2-5 seconds.
1912—Lee Griffin, 220 yard dash in 23 2-5 seconds.
1914—Harold Ryan, 440 yard dash in 54 seconds.
1912—Robert Keyes, 880 yard dash in 2:15 2-5 seconds.
1914—Youngberg, mile dash in 5:12 3-5 seconds.
1912—Hyde, 120 hurdles in 18 1-5 seconds.
1914—Downey, 220 hurdles in 26 3-5 seconds.
1914—Emil Krause, high jump, 5 feet, 5 1/2 inches.
1912—Lee Griffin, broad jump, 20 feet, 3 inches.
1914—Marcus Byers, pole vault, 9 feet, 1 inch.
1914—Christianson, discus throw, 93 feet.
1914—Zelmer Wachter, shotput (12 lbs.) 40 feet.

ROOKIES AND REGULARS

MARLIN, Texas.—Pitcher "Pol" Perritt, late of the Cardinals, took his first workout in a Giant uniform here today. Wet grounds hindered the work somewhat.

SAVANNAH, Ga.—The first intimation of what the regular line-up will be was given today by Manager Donovan. Pipp took first, Boone, second, Maize, third and Peckinpah, short.

DAYTONA, Fla.—The condition of the playing plat making it impossible for the Dodgers to train, Charley Ebbets' thoughts naturally turned to holidays. He spent most of the day planning for a Sunday game at which he is to present a flag to the Daytona Athletic association.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va.—With Ayers, Ainsworth and Henry below weight, and other National regulars about par, Trainer Martin was happy today. He devoted himself to taking three inches from Ray Morgan's "equatorial section," and preparing for the main squad.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—Hans Wagner today began his sixteenth year as a Pirate. He signed and turned in his contract and then went to the Hazelwood shoot with Fred Clarke and ex-Pirate Ed Abbaticchio.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas.—"Rip" Hagerman, Cleveland pitcher who jumped to the Chi-Peds, now the Whales, walked into the Indian camp here today, having done a "Walter Johnson" back to O. B. forces.

TAMPA, Fla.—The Cub hospital list was started today. Raymond Murphy, Heinie Zimmerman's college recruit was spiked. Raymond Murphy did the spiking. How he accomplished the feat is a mystery. Jimmy Lavender has a substitute for the emery ball. He uses spitball and sand to throw it.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—Manager Rowland said today he has practically decided on his tentative team. The only place worrying him is third base. Bromwich and Baker are the rivals for the job.

HOT WELLS, Texas.—Batting, fielding and medicine ball manipulation followed by a session of road work busied the Cardinal regulars and rookies yesterday with the exception of Lodz, Meadows, Steele and North, recruit pitchers. Manager Huggins had them learning to pitch.

HOUSTON, Texas.—Handball and basketball in the Y. M. C. A. gym was the program for the Browns yesterday.

BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush your Kidneys occasionally if you eat meat regularly.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Chas. A. Beyschlag, druggist, 503 Main St.

Havana.—With Armadon Marsans, who wears a tight fitting injunction donned by the federal court, caving in center field the St. Louis Cardinals took a strenuous workout under Fielder Jones Wednesday, finishing with road work. Marsans' injunction doesn't enjoin in Cuba.

MACON, Ga.—Maranville to Evers to Schmidt play was picked up in the Braves' camp today, where it was dropped last October. Magee will be out again Monday.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—If wet weather doesn't interfere, Pat Moran plans to put the Phillies through a fast workout today. Much interest is attached to the expected arrival today of George Whitted, ex-Boston utility man.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.—Gossip from Connie Mack's elimination camp has it Larry Lajoie is producing the goods. Mack feels confident the infield combination will be as good as last year's when Collins was on deck.

WITH NOTRE DAMERS

MADISON, Wis., March 4.—Badger track athletes are on the last lap of a period of strenuous training preparation for Saturday's meet with Notre Dame at South Bend. The Wisconsin team will leave tomorrow for South Bend. Coach Tom Jones expects strong competition from the Catholics, in view of their recent meet against Michigan. The Badger coach looks for Mucks, Keeler and Gardner to improve their former records in the weight events. Hedges and Harvey should score points in the distance events. Notre Dame speed merchants have somewhat of a call on the Badgers.

No one is without prejudices, but some are better than others at concealing them.

Two surprises were in store for followers of the La Crosse City Bowling league last night at the Malloy alleys when the Lotus club took two out of three games from the Gunds and the Eagle seconds took three straight games from the Eagle firsts. Only eight men rolled in the Eagles-Eaglets match.

Steady and consistent bowling won for the Lotus club from the Brewers, who fell down in their last game after taking the second go. Rogstad, Freng and Ed Horn did the hard work for the winners with Paulson and Ulrich rolling the best ball for the Gunds.

Emil Horn cavorted around the head of the alley for a score of 225 in the second game of the Aerie match. His other scores were good.

THE GOOD JUDGE UNDERSTANDS AND KNOWS THEY WILL APPRECIATE IT.

JUDGE, LET'S MOVE. THAT FELLOW'S JAW LOOKS AS IF HE HAS MUMPS. HE OUGHT TO BE QUARANTINED.

THAT'S JUST WHAT HE THINKS ABOUT YOU. I'LL TELL YOU BOTH ABOUT THE LITTLE REAL TOBACCO CHEW THAT SATISFIES.

I'D HATE FOR MY FRIENDS TO SEE ME LOOKING LIKE HIM.

LOOKS are often deceiving. In the old days everybody could spot the tobacco chewer just by the hump in his cheek.

"Right-Cut," the Real Tobacco Chew, gives men fine, satisfying tobacco comfort—and nobody can notice that they are chewing.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—cut fine, short shred—seasoned and sweetened just enough, cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short shred so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary cased tobacco makes you spit too much.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up with molasses and licorice. Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste in "Right-Cut."

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

Post Office "Pork Bar" Abandoned and House Resolution for Old Appropriation Is Substituted

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Continuing the first half of President Wilson's administration, the sixty-third congress adjourned sine die at noon today. The capitol re-echoed with cheers when the gavel of Vice President Marshall and Speaker Clark sounded "Taps."

The president and his entire cabinet witnessed the close, in the president's private chamber, adjoining the senate. The president's signature on the last bill was the signal for the concluding ceremonies, in accordance with time honored custom. Among the last to receive approval was the seamen's labor bill.

The La Follette bill provides better working conditions for sailors, more lifeboats and rafts, better construction of ships and prevents deserters' arrest.

Senator La Follette has served notice that beginning at the next session of congress, he will begin a fight to force lifeboats for all. He is particularly displeased with the relaxations in this direction permitted on the great lakes.

Andrew Furuseth, representative of the Seamen's union, who has been urging passage of such legislation for many years before, while expressing his pleasure declared it would take a great tragedy on the lakes to bring congress and the country to a realization of the seriousness of this laxness with respect to life boats.

The clause in the postoffice appropriation bill providing that assistant postmasters be abolished was eliminated by the conference report.

Adjournment came today after practically continuous sessions of both senate and house since last Tuesday morning. It also marked the end of almost constant meeting of congress since the president's inauguration, two years ago today.

As the life of congress ebbed away, the usual dramatic and historic scenes were re-enacted. Then members dashed for trains.

While congress adjourned at noon, officially it was some minutes afterward before the final gavel sounded. The house stopped its clock.

The senate did not resort to this subterfuge, but Vice President Marshall held that body until 12:04 to finish his "Good-bye address."

Despite the passage of resolution continuing the appropriations of the Indian bill of last year, and the filibuster of Senator Gronna, of South Dakota, the conference report on the appropriation bill was called up and passed just before noon.

A filibuster on the Indian bill and confirmation of many nominations were among the senate's last tasks.

The nomination of George H. Rabeo of New Hampshire, to the federal trade commission, was among those refused confirmation.

Defeat of the ship purchase bill and postponement of rural credits legislation were the features of the closing hours.

Another important bill to die was the Philippine independence measure.

The congress expiring today was another "billion dollar congress," its appropriations aggregating $1,120,000,000.

Failure to enact legislation required by President Wilson when the houses convened last December was a feature of the session. The Philippine independence, conservation, water power development, and the ship purchase bills, all urged by the president, died today.

An extra session of congress has also been thrown into the discard, at least temporarily, pending foreign developments.

Day dawned today with congress still in session, awaiting adjournment sine die at noon. The passage of the La Follette seamen's bill was the most important legislation.

Little business faced the sleepy-eyed congressmen today after their all-night vigil. A bare handful of members remained until the early hours this morning. At 6:30 a hurry call for a quorum in the senate was sent out.

Song Festival at 4 A. M.

Not in years has such a tame final night session been witnessed. Usual boisterous hilarity, even in the house, was lacking, both houses be-

NORMAL SCHOOLS NEED FUNDS Regents of Normal Schools Contend That Teachers Are Underpaid and Dormitories Needed

MADISON, Wis., March 4.—(Special.)—A. P. Nelson of Grantsburg, was elected president of the board of regents of the University of Wisconsin yesterday, succeeding J. F. Trottsman of Milwaukee, whose resignation was accepted. Immediately following, the regents passed a resolution that no president of the board is eligible to succeed himself.

Regent G. D. Jones of Wausau, was elected vice-president of the board.

Normal Regents Want Money

The normal school regents are asking for approximately $1,500,000 a year for the next two years. This includes operation, maintenance and capital.

"Unless additional dormitories are provided for the normal schools, the students will be housed in barracks," said President Theodore Kronshage of Milwaukee. The board is asking for two dormitories.

The estimated attendance of the schools for the year 1914-15 is 4,270 according to the regents' figures. The annual cost per student is given as $11.08, which is nearly $100 less than the individual cost per student at the university. On this fact the regents hang their hopes of a larger appropriation from the legislature.

Teachers' Normal School teachers do not receive sufficient salary for the class of instructor needed was another claim of the regents. Of the 125 teachers employed in the state normal schools last year, 45 of them quit to accept positions in other schools at an advance in salary.

"It is impossible for us to build up a permanent and competent teaching staff with the present low salaries prevailing," said President Purcell of the Milwaukee normal.

Many of our instructors receive less than the city high school teachers.

The not increase in growth of the schools for the past year was given as 9 per cent.

Residents on North Fourth Street Declare Proposed Work Would Be Serious Tax Burden Now

Nearly every property owner in North Fourth street, between Vine and La Crosse street, by petition, protested the paying of that part of the street today before the Board of Public Works.

Today is "Kickers' Day" and the board is receiving protests of property owners for proposed street paving in all parts of the city. Few have appeared.

North Fourth street residents assert that because the sewer was placed on their property last year, the expense will be too great.

Thomas E. Woolley, contractor, "kicks" against the laying of a limestone top dressing on South Sixteenth street. He served notice upon the board some days ago which will be presented to the council along with the North Fourth street petition. Woolley wants granite dressing on the street, and says he will refuse to pay for the limestone dressing.

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, March 4.—The Turkish fleet, assigned to give battle to the Anglo-French warships inside the Dardanelles, has fled at the approach of the allied war squadron, according to Athens dispatches today.

While a heavy fog hung over the strait, the Turkish war fleet lifted anchor and steamed silently out of Nagara road and into the sea of Marmara. With the lifting of the mist, allied aviators reported not a single Turkish war vessel in the strait and reconnoitering flights far up Marmara sea failed to reveal their whereabouts.

Admiralty officials today admitted they were puzzled at the mysterious disappearance of the Turkish fleet. When the bombardment of the Dardanelles began, nearly the entire naval forces of the sultan were concentrated in the narrows of Nagara road to block the progress of the allied fleet toward Constantinople. The successful advance of the Anglo-French warships brought them to within six miles of the fort where the enemy's fleet was concentrated.

Three More Believed to Have Withdrawn to the Very Approaches of Constantinople, prepared to pass the Bosphorus and enter the Black sea if the Ottoman capital falls.

Turkish aviators flew over the allied fleet all day Sunday and the report they made of the strength of the bombardment forces is believed to have caused a precipitate retreat.

Three more of the inner Dardanelles forts having been reduced, English and French warships continue to shell the forts still guarding the entrance to the narrowest part of the strait, according to Athens dispatches today. A French squadron is renewing the attack on the Bulair forts on the Gulf of Saros side of Gallipoli peninsula with the object of landing marines to seize the railway.

Mine sweepers have cleared the channel for a distance of twelve miles above the entrance, penetrating nearly to Cape Kephez, thirteen miles inside the Dardanelles.

The fleet guns are now trained on smaller forts on the Asiatic side of the strait.

The latest statement from the admiralty regarding the Dardanelles operations emphasized the strength of the attacking forces. The battleship Canopus, last heard from in South American waters, is training her twelve inch guns on the Turkish forts. Her sister ship, the Ocean, is also in action and the 6,500 ton Russian cruiser Askold, carrying twelve 6-inch guns, has joined the fleet. Forty battleships and cruisers, supported by a flotilla of destroyers and smaller vessels are now in action.

Dispatches this afternoon confirmed the report that German artillerymen are manning the big Krupp guns replying to the allied fleet bombardment of the Dardanelles. A landing party found bodies of many Germans near the ruins of a dismantled Turkish fort.

TARIFF RECASTING BIGGEST JOB DONE

Practically Every Schedule Rewritten by the First Democratic Congress in Sixteen Years

WASHINGTON, March 4.—After a record breaking session, both for amount of work actually accomplished, and length of time in actual session, the sixty-third congress expired by legal limitation at noon today. The first democratic congress for sixteen years, the first big job accomplished was the recasting of the tariff laws, to replace the Payne-Aldrich schedules.

Wholesale reductions in the duties on wool, sugar and steel had been proposed by the democratic house, which had preceded this congress, but President Taft had vetoed them. As the ensuing election seemed to be a rebuke to President Taft for preventing the enactment of these new tariff schedules, the democrats went to tariff reform with a vim, and the Underwood-Simons bill, now on the statute books was enacted. This was the biggest job probably, done by this congress, it requiring the actual rewriting of almost every schedule, complicated not only by partisan feeling, but by selfish demands made by every state for protection of its own industries, but free trade for articles consumed, though not produced, by its citizens. The democrats had particular trouble in this respect over sugar, due to the action of the Louisiana delegation, and of the attitude of the men from the beet sugar states.

Next, congress tackled banking and currency reform. Twelve regional banks were established, which would, in times of stress, or of especial demand for currency, rediscunt the commercial paper of the national banks, so as to provide them with funds.

Those favoring government ownership can point with a certain amount of pride to the performance of this congress. It appropriated $35,000,000 for the building of a government railroad in Alaska, which will be operated as well as controlled by the government. The Alaska coal bill was an accompanying measure. It contained a provision that some of the coal lands should be retained for actual mining by the government, for the needs of the navy and other branches of the government.

Ship Bill is Killed

This congress also put the government into the insurance business. At the outbreak of the European war, one of the great difficulties affecting this country was the almost impossibility of obtaining ships to take our products abroad. Due to the fear of mines, capture by one of the belligerents with subsequent prize court proceedings before release could be effected, and other difficulties, insurance rates soared to the point of prohibition. Urged on by excited would-be exporters, embargoes and foodstuffs at all the seaports and by all the railroads as a result, congress rushed through a law providing for a government bureau to sell war risk insurance.

This congress spent a great deal of time trying to put the government in the ship business, a bill providing for government purchase and operation of ships, passing the house of representatives, but being killed in the senate by one of the most spectacular filibusters ever conducted, involving three all night sessions, and breaking records for continuous talking by senators.

A bill of tremendous importance to the merchant marine of this country was another of the group passed because of the emergencies arising out of the European war. This was the ship registry bill, which admitted to American registry, or gave the right to fly the American flag, foreign built ships which were owned or should be acquired by American citizens or corporations. Hitherto only American built ships were permitted to fly the American flag.

One of the most bitter contests during the congress was on the bill to repeal the exemption to the American coastwise ships from the payment of tolls through the Panama canal. From the beginning it had been intended that American ships in the foreign trade should pay the same tolls as paid by the foreign ships with which they came into competition, but in the Panama canal act had been included a provision exempting American coastwise ships. The bill was put through.

On the south one of the most important bills was that providing for government standardization and inspection of cotton. By the establishment of government grades the southern producers felt that they could sell their cotton to better advantage, and without the danger of having their cotton bought from them as of a low grade, and sold to the manufacturers as of a higher grade. The method used in the bill for forcing dealing in these grades was by taxing at the rate of 2 cents a pound all sales of cotton on any exchange.

POLICE NAB HIRT ON TECHNICALITY BENIKE ESCAPES

Anti-Police Editor Arrested When He Tries to Apprehend Deserter-Witness Wanted in West

Despite the police court mandate, Joe Hirt, editor of the Crooked Copper and accuser of patrolmen, neither paid his fine nor went to jail yesterday, Hirt had not "disappeared." He was just looking for Benike with a pair of nippers. Anybody but a policeman could have found him without ado.

At the time of Hirt's arrest, A. E. Bleekman, Hirt's attorney, was not in his office, and Frank Winter appeared for Hirt. He unhesitatingly declared Hirt was within his rights, that even in the doubtful case that his appeal bond, made out on a blank provided by the court, was improperly executed or filed, Hirt could correct it, and served notice that any attempt to jail Hirt would start some real bother.

Does Police Work

Theroupin Hirt filed a new bond, and the jailer never saw him.

With a letter declaring that Edward Theodor Benike is a deserter from the United States marine corps, signed by Major A. S. Lenore, assistant adjutant, and authority to arrest Benike signed by Col. Littleton W. T. Waller, Joe Hirt was on the trail of the police's star witness during the time when the police court declared him "disappeared" and had the drag-net out for him.

Hirt, one hand in a sling, the other clanking a pair of handcuffs, invaded all the old haunts of Benike, but found him not. It was Benike, the police witness, not Hirt, the police accuser, who had "disappeared."

Benike a Deserter

Major Lenore in his letter, says: "Edward Theodor Benike enlisted in U. S. Marine corps on July 25, 1913, as a private for a term of four years, and deserted from Marine Barracks, Navy Yard, Mare Island, Cal., on October 6, 1913. This man is still a deserter at large and amenable to arrest and trial by naval court martial."

A copy of the Bertillon certificate describing Benike, with which the marine corps provided the La Crosse police department some time ago, was enclosed with the letter.

BURGLARS ATTEMPT RAID ON PLUMBERS

Robbery of the Baker-Niebuhr Plumbing company's establishment, Fifth and Jay streets, early this morning was foiled by J. T. Brogan, night watchman.

Brogan was making his nightly inspection of back doors and had stepped into the alley near the side door of the plumbing shop, when he heard someone run towards Fifth street. He saw a man, but just before Brogan saw the man, he stepped on a piece of sheet tin lying on the ground which rattled. This noise scared the burglar.

Brogan found the side door wide open. The lock had been picked. Nothing in the place was missing.

TUG IN TROUBLE

SHEBOYGAN, Wis., March 4.—The tug Hattie L., of Racine, proceeded to Manitowish, Mich., today after having given the Sheboygan life-savers their first work of the season late yesterday. The tug's crank-shaft broke when she was two miles off the local breakwater. She signalled for aid. The life-savers and the tug Peter B. Reiss responded. The life-savers kept the Hattie L. off the rocks until the Reiss arrived and towed her to harbor.

DARNELL TO MILWAUKEE

CHICAGO, March 4.—Rev. James Morrison Darnell, marrying dominie, was today ordered removed to Milwaukee to stand trial on a white slave charge. He was indicted there last week on the allegation that he transported Ruth Soper, Owatonna, Minn. girl, from one state to another for immoral purposes. Darnell's lawyers' one plea that his removal be postponed until Saturday was granted.

NOTED SWINDLER CAUGHT

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 4.—Danny LeBar, alleged to be wanted by police here to answer charges of various swindles, including the famous wire-tapping swindle by which hundreds of Iowa farmers were defrauded, is in jail here today. He bumped into Sheriff Adam as the latter was taking a train from the city.

BERLIN, via Wireless to London, March 4.—Forty thousand German troops narrowly escaped capture or annihilation by the Russians in the recent fighting around Przasnysz, it was admitted at the war office today. Only by the most desperate fighting and by forced marches did the Germans extricate themselves from an extremely dangerous position.

Following the Germans' victory over the Russians near the outskirts of Przasnysz, a single army corps advanced eastward from the town. Russian forces numbering 120,000 closed in on the Kaiser's troops from the east and southeast.

For a whole day a bloody conflict was waged in the marshes, the Slavs attempting to surround the German corps whose position was most critical.

Toward night the Germans cut their way back toward Przasnysz. They were forced to abandon their wounded.

The Germans who had stormed Przasnysz, in the meantime had been forced to retire before superior forces, falling back upon Miava. The retreating army corps found itself still threatened by Russian forces but maintained an orderly retreat, despite the fact that it was outnumbered three to one. Near Miava, German reinforcements were brought up and the Russian advance halted.

The Russian victory in this region is without the slightest importance, the war office asserted today. It cannot be compared to the recent storming of Przasnysz when the Germans took 10,000 prisoners. Petrograd, it was asserted, is making the most of this and other unimportant gains to divert public attention from the disastrous rout of the Slavs in the Mazurian lakes.

FAIR DIRECTORS SUGCEED SELVES

Thomas H. Spence, John P. Salzer and William H. Tarbox will succeed themselves as directors of the La Crosse Interstate Fair. There will be a fair this year at dates later to be fixed by the directors. Election of officers of the fair will be held at the next meeting of the directors.

The above business matters pertaining to the fair were disposed of by the La Crosse Interstate Fair association last night following a dinner of the directors at the Stoddard.

C. S. Van Auker, secretary of the association read his report of last year's fair, indicating that the fair had received in 1914 $22,962.52 and is ready for business with $70.44 on hand. Of the amount received the state appropriated $5,000 and donations of $1,204 were acknowledged. Old bills left over from 1913 amounting to $339.64 were paid so the fair is now out of debt.

SMOKY CITY BANK FAILS TO OPEN

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 4.—The German National bank, of Pittsburgh, located at 600 Wood street, one of the largest institutions in the city, doing a general banking business, failed to open its doors this morning. Shortly before 10 o'clock J. W. F. Eversman, the cashier, issued a statement saying that the directors held a meeting last night and because of business conditions and uncertainty regarding much of the bank's paper, decided to close. He declared that they expected to be able to pay depositors in full.

W. W. Ramsey is the president of the bank, which has a capital of $500,000. According to the latest statement the total deposits were $4,000,000.

PRESIDENT CAN'T DECLARE WAR OR START AN EMBARGO

MANY CONSIGNMENTS ARE TRICKS Ships Ostensibly Bound for Neutral Ports Have Transferred Cargoes to Belligerents

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Shortly before 1 a. m. the house finally passed and sent to the president the resolution, as amended by the senate, giving him sweeping authority to use all armed and naval forces to enforce this nation's neutrality.

Administration officials today denied with considerable emphasis the intimation that the joint resolution passed by both houses early today giving the president power to enforce neutrality carried with it authority to lay embargoes or declare war.

It was stated that all that the state department wanted—for it was at its behest that congress acted—was the executive be empowered to prevent the misuse of United States ports by belligerents.

"Tricks" That Are Vain

It is admitted that ships have cleared from both the eastern and western ports of the United States for destinations that they were never expected to reach and that they have trans-shipped coal, provisions and other supplies to warships and auxiliary cruisers of both Germany and England on the high seas. Under the new regulation this will be impossible. Where the president has the slightest suspicion that any such plan is intended he may withhold clearance papers.

Authority Limited

As originally drafted, the resolution could have been construed as authorizing the president to place an embargo on all exports of war materials by directing that clearance papers be withheld. The house amended this resolution, but the senate amended it as too drastic and intended it to provide that vessels carrying supplies and the like could only be held up where the collector "had reason to believe" the cargoes were not intended to be taken to the ports contained in the manifest.

President Wilson today signed the resolution. By its authority he may direct collectors of customs to withhold clearance papers to any vessel he has reason to believe intends to carry cargoes of munitions or supplies to belligerent warships on the high seas.

In this form both houses passed the resolution and sent it to the president for his signature.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

How the Cow Jumped Over the Moon.

"HEY, diddle, diddle; the cat and the fiddle; the cow jumped over the moon!" sang daddy as the kiddies clambered upon his knees. "I don't believe that cow ever did jump over the moon!" cried Evelyn.

"What, don't believe what is actually in print?" laughed daddy. "Why, that cat with its fiddle has been playing music as the cow jumped over the moon for more years than I can remember, and the little dog has been laughing his funny laugh—yes, dogs do laugh; I've told you so before—and the plate has been running after the spoon, too, all that time."

"Don't believe any of that? Well, well," said daddy gravely. "You just ask mamma if plates and spoons haven't a way of running and climbing, too, because they are often found in the ash barrel."

"Oh, well, Nora put em there!" explained Jack in a superior sort of way.

Daddy's eyes twinkled. "I'm just going to prove to you that a cow can jump over the moon if she tries real hard, and so can you and so can I if we are only smart enough."

"Oh, daddy!" The kiddies wanted to believe, but they just couldn't, so daddy must convince them.

"Well, you see, kiddies, the earth turns around on its axis every twenty-four hours, and in the course of a year it revolves 365 times. It's fair to suppose that during those 365 days the cow might be able to jump 'over' the moon."

"Oh!" cried the kiddies, round eyed. "Oh, daddy, we never thought of that!"

"But you haven't told us yet how the cat learned to play the fiddle, daddy," said Jack.

"Oh, fiddle-dee-dee," cried daddy. "Isn't it time to go to bed?"

"No, daddy; not for four minutes yet, and if you don't 'splain right away how the cat plays the fiddle we'll pull your hair, daddy. We will, we will!" shouted Evelyn gleefully.

"Well, I'll tell you," began daddy rather lamely. It must be confessed. "There was the cat, and then there was the fiddle, and you see, after all, the nursery rhyme doesn't say that the cat played the fiddle. It only says the cat and the fiddle!" cried daddy, with much glee.

"Now kiddies must go to bed."

BY MOLLY McMASTER

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Crawford was flatly discouraged. As he mounted the steps leading to his boarding house he realized that he had lost the small model of his patent and that the knowledge in no way worried him. He had no doubt left it in the subway train that had carried him homeward from the financier's office.

However, since the thing was not worth financing and putting on the market, Crawford didn't care what happened to his patent. All he did know was that he would not spend another cent nor yet another atom of brain energy trying to invent egg boilers or any other kind of boiler. He had banked rather heavily on the outcome of his visit to the financier, but the expectations had ended. Crawford would have to start over in the future save his $20 a week. His dreams of sudden and vast wealth brought about by a startling demand for his patent egg boiler vanished into the past, even as his model itself had lost itself in the subway. Crawford hoped it had fallen beneath the wheels and been crushed to powder. He laughed so bitterly and could not remember, so gloomy was his attitude, that this great financier had mentioned that a slight amount of added thought spent on the patent would not result in a most successful egg boiler.

And Polly Woodward, returning from a hard day in the office of her employer, picked up the small package that had been left in the seat into which her tired body sank. She was far too weary to ponder on the exact nature of the thing she had found, but knew it to be something for kitchen use. It might be a baby feeder or even a grill of some kind. Later, when she had cooked her evening meal in the tiny kitchenette her flat boasted, she would no doubt have sufficient brain energy to fathom the character of her find. For the present she closed her eyes—they were strangely luminous—and robbed the gentleman opposite of the pleasure of watching them. He, also a tired toiler of Wall street, had been resting his own eyes unobservedly on the beauty of the weary little worker. John Galsworth was more than ever regretful that so many women were forced to enter the field of labor.

"An egg boiler," she mused. "I wonder if it's any good or just like the thousands of other egg boilers." Curiously got the better of her and she tripped lightly into her kitchen to experiment with Jim Crawford's patent and one of her sixty-cents-a-dozen eggs.

"I will have to use this for salad tomorrow," she told herself by way of apology for her extravagance. Using great care so that no harm would come to the model, Polly put in her egg. She felt certain that the person who had lost the patent would claim it by advertisement, and she did not want to damage it. To her interest, the thing seemed to be one of those labor-saving devices so dear to the domestic woman's heart. Polly had many little contrivances that saved her both footprints and time. Where there is adequate kitchen space the most modern equipment is none too modern.

The indicator on the egg boiler snapped and Polly removed the egg. Only to find it half boiled. She sighed disappointedly. The patent had seemed so promising, yet it failed because of the indicator.

"Surely it could be quite easily adjusted," she pondered while she cleaned the model and dried it carefully. "There would be one of these in every kitchen if it could be easily regulated to any number of minutes. All the girls in the office would have one. I wonder," the continuation of Polly's query was carried on in the small sitting room, whither she went with Crawford's patent. Her luminous eyes were half closed, so close was her scrutiny of the egg boiler. She sat down under the light, her busy brain hard at work.

When a week had passed and no one had advertised for the model, Polly became impatient. She had perfected the boiler until it worked like a charm, and it irritated her to realize that the inventor was so lacking in interest as to put forward no claim for his patent. It should be on the market, yet she was not free to go to the financier in the office building in which she worked and put it before him. She had heard that John Galsworth was always ready to finance anything good.

It was Polly herself who finally advertised for the person who had left a small package on the subway containing an invention.

Crawford, from whom the shades of gloom were gradually lifting, happened to see the advertisement and went forthwith in search of his lost property.

It was perforce after business hours that he went. Polly Woodward had scarcely tied up herself and her flat before her bell sounded.

Crawford was decidedly pleased that he had lost his model when he beheld Polly in the doorway.

"You can make stacks of money out of that," she told him when she had drawn him into the cozy sitting room. "It only required a simple bit of regulating. You won't mind my showing you, will you?"

Crawford wouldn't have minded anything she chose to do, but he merely listened attentively to her

curiously intelligent explanation of his error.

"By Jove! My head is solid ivory—not to have seen that," he said with a splendid dash of color in his cheeks and sparkle to his eyes. "But after all," he added quietly, looking at her, "it takes a woman's head to figure out these necessities for the home." He glanced wistfully about the lovely room that was tastefully but inexpensively furnished, and sighed.

Polly Woodward laughed outright.

"Poor man," she said softly. "I pity any one who has to live in a boarding house. But," she added, quickly and joyfully, "don't you see that your patent will make a nice home for you if you just go about placing it properly?"

"One financier turned me down the day I lost it," Crawford told her. "There is a Mr. John Galsworth in our office building," Polly began hesitatingly. "I feel sure he would be interested in it."

"You are taking far too much trouble," interrupted Crawford. "If you will agree to take half the profits I will be glad to get the thing off my mind. We are busy at the office just now." He arose because he had already trespassed on her time. "The thing was useless without your improvement."

When he had gone Polly had time to realize that Crawford was most generous and that his personality was decidedly pleasing. After that she skipped out to the telephone in the corner chemist's and made an appointment with John Galsworth.

The big financier received her the following day in his luxurious office. His philanthropy was well known. Polly approached him with no fear and put her model before him.

Galsworth remembered having rested tired eyes on her beauty one evening in the subway. Her magnetism, together with the undoubted value of the egg boiler which she demonstrated to him, quite worked the charm.

When she had left the office Galsworth sighed. He felt the girl's presence even when she had disappeared from sight and again regretted the fact that women must struggle in the business world save in this particular instance. He rejoiced that Polly Woodward had entered his life.

And Polly returned to her office with a light heart. She went immediately to the telephone and told Crawford the good news. He was so delighted that he asked her to lunch with him by way of celebration, and Polly agreed. She was glad that she had worn her new blouse to the office that day.

When she returned to her office,

Debate on Heim Bill Disfranchising Students Occupies the Assembly

MADISON, Wis., March 4.—The bill relating to compulsory school attendance was killed by the assembly yesterday. This bill provided for countenancing absence from school provided students were attending confirmation classes.

The debate on the Heim bill intended to disenfranchise students of the state educational institutions was opened by Assemblyman Crosby of Clark. The bill has been recommended for indefinite postponement. He said that nearly all of the states had restricted the rights of the floating population and went at length into the subject. Assemblyman O'Brien of Eau Claire, vigorously defended the right of the students of the state to vote.

"The qualifications for a voter in Wisconsin are one year's residence in the state, ten days in the precinct, and not being an idiot," said O'Brien. "This gives any tramp in the state the right to vote. And this assembly is considering disenfranchising intelligent and cultured young men from their rights as citizens of Wisconsin. The bill is a joke."

"The most nefarious piece of legislation ever presented in the Wisconsin senate."

This was the statement made in the senate this morning, by Senator Bray, regarding the Ackley water-power bill.

Senator Bray yesterday offered a resolution in the senate providing for the appearance of Prof. E. A. Gilmore before the senate to give his ideas regarding the Wisconsin water-power situation. The resolution met with spirited opposition because of the alleged implication in that the "interests" were trying to put one over on the senate and that advice from outside sources was necessary. The debate was continued this morning and the resolution finally referred to the committee on state affairs. It was at this point that Senator Bray made a vigorous speech denouncing the pending bill.

A resolution made by Senator Monk providing for the appearance of members of the university faculty before the legislature or the legislative committees was passed by a vote of 18 to 16. Heretofore the faculty men have refused to appear on orders of the university deans because of the alleged activity of the university in state politics.

And if at dinner there were red roses on the table for Polly, and roses in Polly's cheeks for Galsworth and only a short talk on the subject of egg boilers, no one minded the evening passed with wonderful promise of happiness in its trail, for Polly and Galsworth had found one another.

Crawford went up that evening to the home of the sweetheart who had been waiting impatiently to hear the news of the egg boiler. But all Crawford did was to take her into his arms.

GET THE RIGHT PREMISES

Replying to a very intelligent criticism of his bill to take control of municipally owned public utilities away from the state commission and confer it upon city authority, Assemblyman Kurtenacker has given publicity to a letter in which he acquaints the public with the fact that his bill was not intended to be conclusive, but was introduced hurriedly in order to bring the matter before the legislature before the time for filing bills had terminated; the assemblyman is open to suggestions and amendments, and has in mind some better method of administering the La Crosse water works.

Upon this phase of the problem with which his measure deals, Mr. Kurtenacker says:

The state railway commission has its hands full. It can give us help. It is a commission of good men. It may even do to appeal to when needed. But it ought to be more satisfactory to have authority right on the ground to handle local problems as they arise. You can't run a private La Crosse business from Madison so well as you can run it in La Crosse, and with experts in charge, the same rule should apply to a local public utility. It should be run by experts, of course. I certainly do not favor any other kind of management. I should like to see it operated right and put on the right basis as to its finances.

One hardly sees wherein, if it would be advantageous to take the municipal water plant out of the hands of the commission on the ground that you can't run a private La Crosse business from Madison so well as you can run it in La Crosse.

It would be less advisable to deprive the commission of authority over the lighting plant or the street car property, upon exactly the same ground. The assemblyman seems to have fallen into the error of thinking that the commission is actually running the water plant in the sense of management. Of course, as a matter of fact, it is not expected that the commission will deal with the details of administration, nor will it interfere with an expertly competent administration of the water works. The commission's authority is a safeguard against bad local management. Without disturbing the authority of the commission, Mr. Kurtenacker can proceed to the matter of legislation that will enable La Crosse to attempt, under most favorable conditions, to secure able local management. Then, in the event that at any time the local management fails, we shall have the privilege of appealing to the commission for aid. The condition today is that the Kurtenacker bill would place the water plant under the absolute control of authority which "inexpert" inadequately describes.

Perhaps Mr. Kurtenacker eventually will accept this view, and from that point proceed to the truly valuable service he has in mind for La Crosse. To the last period we agree with him that there should be some stronger and more expert local agency for the administration of our water works.

THE TRAIL OF HIRT GROWS HOT

The dead, dull absence of any effort to get the facts about matters relating to police performances is evidenced by the reckless and animated effort to get Joe Hirt.

It ought to be easy. The police admit that they know a lot of damning things about him. Aside from the interesting question of why, knowing these said unpronounceable things, they showed no interest in getting him until he evinced an inclination to get them, the hilarious spectacle has little significance.

Now this is not a defense of Hirt. Far be it from us to defend one who has dared the lese majeste of speaking ill of the Handsome. Merely it is an inquiry, out of the dust of the pursuit of Hirt, as to why from all the blue-coated crusade there was not detailed a single helmet to get the fugitive deserter who starred as witness-fetters in the exciting trial of the complaining witness. Perhaps not an officer could be spared lest, in the apprehension of a mere deserter, the state's informant escape.

Oh, very well! Let go the hue and cry. Perhaps, when the deep-mouthed bay is stilled, it will be found that someone has got the bar by the tail.

WE'RE ALL FOR THE RAYMONDS

News of the elevation of E. C. Raymond to the district bench of Wyoming is received in La Crosse with gratification. It is pleasant to know that a young progressive schooled in Wisconsin is helping make history in a sister commonwealth. A discriminating lawyer, Mr. Raymond will lend strength to the Wyoming bench, and the charming Mrs. Raymond will contribute to the graces of the Wyoming official family. If the cares of his new trust shall not deprive us of the annual visit of these interesting people, there will be nothing to mar the pleasure with which La Crosse contemplates the well-earned preferment of Judge Raymond.

Thoughts on Seeing the Back Yard

The snow has gone And once again I stand beside The window pane And see the spot Where bloomed the rose, And where the maid The tinware throws.

Where once a sheet Of crystal snow Hid everything That lay below Now all is bare And I may scan Each empty corn And sardine can.

And yonder lies The wrench I missed Where once I held It in my fist, And there's the hammer That I sought And vowed that in The house I'd brought.

How camethose papers From the press To strew my yard With such distress? I vow that all Was spick and span The day that first The snow began.

When from my life The snow shall pass, And bare of cover Is the grass I wonder will My work appear So very desolate And drear?

Will what I once Thought clean and neat Be marred with Refuse of the street? And will the place Where I have toiled, Be with such grim Disorder spoiled?

If so, I fain Would pass away When all the flowers Are bright and gay And sink into My final rest When my life-yard Is at its best.

HOW TO PREVENT ACID STOMACHS AND FOOD FERMENTATION

By a Stomach Specialist

As a specialist who has spent many years in the study and treatment of stomach troubles, I have been forced to the conclusion that most people who complain of stomach trouble possess stomachs that are absolutely healthy and normal. The real trouble, that which causes all the pain and difficulty, is excessive acid in the stomach, aggravated by food fermentation. Hyper-acidity irritates the delicate lining of the stomach and food fermentation causes wind, which distends the stomach abnormally, causing that full bloated feeling. Thus both acids and fermentation interfere with and retard the process of digestion. The stomach is usually healthy and normal, but irritated almost past endurance by these foreign elements—acid and wind. In all such cases—and they comprise over 90 per cent of all stomach difficulties—the first and only step necessary is to neutralize the acid and stop the fermentation by taking in a little warm or cold water immediately after eating, from one to two teaspoonfuls of bisaturated magnesia, which is doubtless the best and only really effective antacid and food corrective known. The acid will be neutralized and the fermentation stopped almost instantly, and your stomach will at once proceed to digest the food in a healthy, normal manner. Be sure to ask your druggist for the bisaturated magnesia, as I have found other forms utterly lacking in its peculiarly valuable properties.

Again he called the usher.

"Take this to Joe, and tell him to have it played," he ordered. "Anything else you'd like, Miss Molly?"

"I'm afraid to mention a wish for fear I'd get it," she laughed, in more or less embarrassment; but Fern, who was having the time of her life, giggled, and telling him to recall the boy, added a favorite of her own to the musical program.

"You can have a good time most any place," Sledge complimented her, with a growing fondness for Molly's friend. "You're a nice kid. I ought to have invited your gentleman friend along."

"I don't see who it would be," laughed Fern. "Molly knows so many nice chaps, but the most of them are such boys."

"Excuse me a minute, girls," begged Sledge, and unlooked himself from the background.

"Where now has he gone?" wondered Molly, half amused and half apprehensive.

"He's probably noticed that some girls have candy," surmised Fern, who had come to believe him infallible. "He'll bring back a ton of it."

"I hope he isn't going to order the spotlights turned this way," snickered Molly. "He'd do it, I think. He's capable of anything."

"As long as it's nice," admitted Fern. "I'll bet you never had a man treat you with more respect."

"That's true enough. He's rather a surprise to me in that. He's a fine friend to have, Fern."

Just as the overture struck up Sledge returned to the box, followed by a large-handed man of about thirty-five, whose face and neck were red from much cheerful exposure to the weather. He had a merry blue eye and pompous hair, and he wore diamond shirt studs and cuff buttons.

"Tommy Reeler, girls," introduced Sledge. "Miss Fern Bank. Tommy, Miss Molly Marley."

Mr. Reeler, in great heartiness and in friendliness all unafraid, shook hands with both the girls, and sat down by Fern.

"I'm in luck," he confided to the crowd. "I was feeling lonesome enough to take a drink when Den dug me up and slipped me the news that he had a girl for me. How do you like our town, Miss Fern?"

"I love it," returned Fern, not daring to look at Molly, whose brimming eyes she knew to be fixed upon her.

Under the crescendo of the music, the conversation became paired off, and Sledge, with complacent self-probation, watched the couple in front of him.

"Tommy's a right guy," he confided to Molly. "Big contractor; paying in city buildings. Wife died last winter."

"That was too bad!" responded Molly sympathetically.

"She was due," declared Sledge. "I'd a killed her."

"Was she so dreadful?" inquired Molly, forcing her share of the conversation.

"A souse," granted Sledge. "Tommy don't touch it, but she got a different kind of a Heinz on every night."

"Drank?" guessed Molly, trying to remember for Fern's benefit.

"For the family," corroborated Sledge, "and all this time Tommy a decent guy. He deserves a good woman, but he don't get to meet 'em. He'd be a great pal for your little friend, if she can pull him."

"I never heard Fern express a preference for widowers," she suggested.

"He's the same as not," Sledge assured her. "There's no kids. Tommy's a grand boy."

"Me for a blonde," Tommy Reeler unintentionally explained to the audience, and before she could stop it, the clear silver giggle of Fern, blended with the piano obligato.

Reeler looked around at Sledge with a broad grin, and nodded his head emphatically in the direction of Fern.

"Having a nice party?" asked Molly, softly, bending forward; but Fern was speechless.

The curtain rose, and the play began. Sledge, bending knotted brows upon the stage, sat decently aloof. If anybody liked this sort of thing, far be it from him to interfere with their pleasure. Between the acts, however, he came right back on the job. He arranged for Tommy and himself to take the girls out to see the new water-works plant on the following day, and to witness, as balcony patrons, on the following night, a barn dance of the West End Club. He planned a Country Club dinner for the day after, and then, reaching nonchalantly into his waistcoat pocket, he dropped into Molly's lap a glittering bauble, which looked like a glass hickory-nut.

"Take that, down to Duway's and have it fitted to your finger," he directed.

She picked it up incredulously. It couldn't be real!

"Why, it's a diamond!" she gasped, as it lay flashing and gleaming in her hand, and she saw the perfect cutting and wonderful fire of it. The realization startled her so that she almost dropped it.

"It had better be, or somebody goes to jail," he informed her. "That rock set me back the price of a house and lot."

"But, Mr. Sledge, I can't accept this," she earnestly assured him.

CHAUNCEY OLCOTT TONIGHT

Chauncey Olcott comes to the La Crosse theater tonight for an engagement of one performance in the new comedy which Rachel Grothers wrote for him and entitled "The Heart of Paddy Whack." It is said that not in many seasons has this favorite lyric star had so fine a play or so excellent a supporting cast. Mr. Olcott is seen this season under Henry Miller's management in a new role, that of a middle-aged Irish bachelor whose heart runs away with him when his saucy ward returns from a Dublin school. The play is said to be a love story of charm and appeal, peopled with picturesque and interesting types of Old Ireland in 1830, and the quaint costumes of the period have furnished Mr. Miller with a background for setting the story that promises much to Olcott audiences. Mr. Olcott will bring with him a half dozen new songs, especially written for the new play. The cast will include Edith Luckett, Jennie Lamont, Maud Hosiord, Charles Erwin Verrier, Fleming Ward, Walter Colligan and others.

"SEPTEMBER MORN"
The expected has happened and a big new musical play has been written called "September Morn." Arthur Gillespie manufactured the book and lyrics and Aubrey Stauffer composed the music.
"September Morn" has materialized as a musical comedy hit frames in series of pretty stage pictures instead of dear old nature as the only environment. To tell the naked truth "September Morn" has been pressed into service as the subject for a jolly good and funny show with special good and funny songs with special jingly music on the side and a dancing, singing coterie of tango girls in the lively chorus numbers. Leo Greenwood is chief comedy peddler with a company of forty assisting. Hazel Shannon is a delight and Elsie Bair is a big favorite.

Rowland and Clifford are given credit for exploiting the biggest and best of all fun shows. The attraction but recently closed a sensational run at the La Salle Opera house, Chicago. La Crosse theater Saturday, matinee and night.

He said in a long discussion talk with the Englishman's manager, Harry Pollock, the latter virtually agreed to accept a guarantee of $12,500 and 40 per cent of the gate receipts for a twenty round go at Denver, New Orleans or Havana, Cuba, with the Chicagoans.
"Pollock at first demanded $15,000 guarantee and 50 per cent," said Lewis today. "Then the champion and his manager said they'd trim the demand to $12,500 and 40 per cent. I expect the papers clinching the bout to be signed within a few days."

LIQUOR QUESTION IS BIG ISSUE IN MINNESOTA HOUSE

Concurrent Resolution Submitting Amendment to the Constitution to a Vote Is Postponed

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 4.—(Special.)—Taken unawares by the introduction of a concurrent resolution submitting to the people in the fall of 1916 a prohibition amendment to the constitution, the house Tuesday came dangerously near finding itself face to face with the necessity of voting on the measure and for more than an hour a scene of intense excitement prevailed.

Postponed for Week
Finally the opponents of the resolution, becoming aroused to the situation, succeeded in postponing consideration until next week, but it was a close call.

The resolution which stirred up all the troubles was introduced by Representative John A. Larimore of Minneapolis, who voted against county option. Representative Levi M. Davis of Long Prairie, who also opposed the county option bill, joined with Mr. Larimore.

FAVOR REFERENDUM

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 4.—(Special.)—By a vote of 106 to 12 the house today passed a bill providing for submission of the initiative and referendum amendment defeated at the November elections. There was little opposition to the bill, but lengthy discussion regarding several amendments offered by Representative Christianson of Dawson. These amendments, Mr. Christianson said, were intended to strengthen the bill.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 4.—(Special.)—Railroad freight rates to and from St. Paul and Minneapolis can be made the same by the state railroad and warehouse commission if bills introduced in the senate and house yesterday amendatory to the Cashman distance tariff laws are passed. Under present conditions St. Paul, Minneapolis and the Midway Transfer are separate points taking different rates.

Six Counties Dry
ST. PAUL, Minn., March 4.—(Special.)—Dr. George B. He prophesied that elections will be called in more than twenty counties by June 1.

The six counties already in the fight are Mower, Carver, Wilkins, Clay, Koochiching and Kanabec.

One Senator Bill Up
ST. PAUL, Minn., March 4.—(Special.)—A "one-senator" bill reducing the number of senators and representatives and providing for reapportionment was introduced into the senate today by Senator Duxbury.

The bill reduced the number of senators from 67 to 35, and the number of representatives to 75. There are 131 representatives.

RUNAWAY JUNE

TODAY

MYSTERY

The plot of "Runaway June" breathes mystery. It enchants and holds you spellbound from start to finish.

LOVE

The plot of "Runaway June" contains the strongest love element ever shown in a photoplay.

SUSPENSE

HATRED

The underlying motive of all crime—hatred—prompts Ned and spurs him on to seek revenge on his arch enemy, the man with the black Vandyke.

REVENGE

Revenge is sweet—but it leads to bitter remorse—to heart aches and pain. Revenge is in Ned Warner's heart and it must be appeased.

George Randolph Chester wrote the story, and as the plot develops you will be more mystified and anxious to see the end. You will go home pleased and happy and glad you saw the pictures.

The story will be printed in the La Crosse Tribune every week.

MISSION CHILDREN IN SLEIGH RIDE SEE LA CRESCENT

Seventy-five children of the La Crosse Rescue Mission were made happy yesterday afternoon by members of the Masonic order and women of the Eastern Star.

EXBAMERS WATCH EXPERT UNDERTAKER

Actual post mortem demonstration of physical functions was made by C. L. Truesdell of Milwaukee, dean of the Johnson School of Embalming, before the final session yesterday afternoon of the district meeting of undertakers and funeral directors in the Elks' hall. The demonstration was attended by upwards of twenty undertakers and six nurses from a local hospital.

Many of the undertakers attended the lectures given by Mr. Truesdell on anatomy and the science in embalming. An applied knowledge of the science of anatomy and physiology, Mr. Truesdell said, is now required by all colleges of embalming and sentiment is for the application of the requirement to assistants.

OILED RAGS BURN IN COUNTY JAIL

Damage amounting to $300 resulted from a fire starting from oiled cloths at the county jail at noon today. A floor in one of the parlors was being oiled when the rags being used in the operation caught on fire. The room was filled with smoke. Fire department No. 1 responded to the alarm.

COCOANUT OIL FINE FOR WASHING HAIR

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, the less soap you use the better.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain milked coconut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of lather, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get milked coconut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

WAR RESOLUTIONS DIE IN MADISON

Bosshard Arms Embargo Memorial to Congress and Other War Suggestions Turned Down Today

MADISON, Wis., March 4.—(Special.)—Railroad representatives announced here today that they opened at Oshkosh last night a speaking campaign, which will be carried into every hamlet of the state, in favor of the passage of the two and one-half cent fare law.

The speakers included at Appleton and other cities. Speeches will be made in Beloit on the same subject on the afternoon of March 5.

The railroad men will present statistics at all of these meetings showing a decrease in earnings of the roads since the two cent fare law was enacted in 1907. The railroads contend that a fare of two and one-half cents will be necessary if the railroads are to be expected to give improved service. Among those in the railroad party urging the fare increase are E. G. Potter of the "Sox," E. E. Nash and C. A. Cairns of the Northwestern and P. C. Eldridge of the St. Paul system.

Nearly 200 petitions have been presented to the legislature signed by many thousands of people asking that a two and one-half cent fare law be enacted. Only two petitions, offered by Assemblyman Budlong of Marquette county, have been offered in the legislature in opposition to the increase. Many of the petitions ask for an investigation of the matter by the legislature and in two or three instances the petitions have asked that this investigation be carried on by the railroad commission.

Governor Philipp has announced that he will veto the two and one-half cent fare bill if passed. He declares that he does not believe it can secure a favorable vote in both houses of the legislature. The rumor that the railroads would withdraw the bill is denied by Assemblyman E. A. Everett, who offered the bill in the assembly for them. The railroad attorneys say that there is no disposition on their part to discontinue their fight for a fare increase.

Senator Wilson, accompanied by Secretary J. P. Tumulty, Executive Secretary Rudolph Foster, and his confidential stenographer, reached the capitol shortly after 10 a. m. today.

He proceeded directly to his private office in the senate wing and sent word to the leaders of both houses that he was ready for business.

BIG SPARTA BOUT DRAWS A HUNDRED FANS FROM HERE

Nearly one hundred and fifty light fans, many of them members of the old La Crosse Athletic club, are ready to leave at 6:30 tonight on a train chartered especially for the occasion to attend the boxing show at Sparta, headlined by Art Nelson, Sparta light heavyweight, and Kid Monaghan of Chicago, aspirant for heavyweight honors.

E. G. Seaton and others started the campaign for the special train a week ago today. By Saturday half of the required number of names had been procured and on Monday it was announced that the original mark of seventy-five had been overshot by more than twenty-five names.

This afternoon prospects were that twice the number of fans originally considered would make the trip to Sparta. Stops to be made at West Salem and Bangor are expected to result in the addition of twenty-five or more people to the company.

First Show of Club

The show tonight will be the first held by the newly organized Sparta Athletic club in which Art Nelson is prime mover. The state shows three bouts, aggregating twenty-four rounds, with two Sparta men and one fighter from Warren, Jimmy Wagner, on the card.

The principal go of the evening between Nelson and Monaghan is expected to be a close one. The Sparta, after weeks of training, appears fit as a dollar for the mix, advised from Sparta state. Monaghan, although somewhat of an unknown quantity, around this section of the country, has a big reputation in Chicago circles.

ing too busy to vent their feelings in the time-honored manner. About 4:30 this morning the house held a brief song fest, Representative Conroy of New York singing two solos which brought storms of applause. Then the members rendered "Old Black Joe," and other popular songs.

The ship purchase bill is dead. Administration senators threatened with continuation of the republican filibuster, did not plan another attempt to revive it. The bill dies in conference.

Rural credits legislation also is dead. Instead a congressional commission is advised to investigate the whole subject and report to the next congress by January 1, 1916.

Seamen's Bill Still Lives

Immediately following the passage of the La Follette seamen's bill the president signed it without hesitation. It had been rumored that he would veto it.

The fight on the Indian bill began at 3 a. m. in the senate when the conference report was called up. Senator Gronna objected to items for Indian attorneys and allowance to certain Indian tribes. Senator La Follette also promised vigorous objection to the elimination of Choctaw Indians of Mississippi from participation in Oklahoma tribal funds.

"Private Bills" Go Through

Numbers of minor "private" bills were passed by both branches during the night session.

The house passed the bill providing aid to Alaskan agricultural colleges, approved dropping impeachment charges against former Judge Daniel Thew Wright and, as a tribute to the veteran representative Bartlett of Georgia, who retired, passed a bill appropriating $50,000 for a federal building at Forsyth, Ga. Republican Leader Mann paid a tribute to Bartlett's long service and had Bartlett's bill passed as a token of the house's esteem.

President Wilson, accompanied by Secretary J. P. Tumulty, Executive Secretary Rudolph Foster, and his confidential stenographer, reached the capitol shortly after 10 a. m. today.

BORN AS CAESAR INFANT WILL LIVE

For the second time in two weeks, the same La Crosse doctor successfully performed a Caesarian operation in La Crosse today. This time it was performed at the Lutheran hospital.

Mrs. Hans Scheldrup of Palmero, N. D., today became the mother of a healthy son through use of the surgeon's knife. Both Mrs. Scheldrup and the infant will live.

Owing to the unusualness of the operation and the few times it proves successful in saving lives of both mother and infant, the coincidence of the two operations has been noted. Mrs. Michael Deegan of Mound Prairie, was the other woman who submitted to the same surgeon's knife a few days ago.

HEIM BILL LOSES IN THE ASSEMBLY

MADISON, Wis., March 4.—(Special.)—The Heim bill to disfranchise students at educational institutions was defeated in the assembly last night by a strong majority. Prior to the defeat of the original bill, Assemblyman Crosby of Clark county offered a substitute which provided that the fact of the residence of a student at an educational center shall not gain or lose him a residence there. The debate centered on this amendment, which was finally defeated, 57 to 13. The original Heim bill provided that no student shall be allowed to vote at an education center unless he is self-supporting. Lawyers in the assembly pronounced this bill unconstitutional, and a substitute was presented which attempted to accomplish the same purpose in a constitutional way.

When the assembly convened last night Assemblyman Julius Hanson of Shawano county attacked the measure, saying if such a bill were enacted the principle would be extended to other occupations and vocations. Assemblyman Minkley, in attacking the bill, said that the wet and dry question was the mainspring back of this proposed legislative action. He said he was opposed to illegal voting but saw in this bill only an attempt to disfranchise persons who would not vote the way certain elements in society wanted them to. Minkley's speech brought such an applause from the galleries that Speaker Whittey threatened to clear the galleries if it were repeated.

The assembly killed the Pieper bill which would practically have repealed the eugenics marriage law. It provided that contracting parties to a marriage need not be physically examined but must sign a statement declaring themselves free from communicable diseases.

By a vote of 68 to 15 the assembly killed the Kent bill to increase the minimum salary of Wisconsin teachers from $40 to $60 a month.

Citizen Brought Home

Another emergency proposition caused by the European war was the necessity of doing something for the tens of thousands of American stranded in Europe by hostilities. Their paper money, and travelers' checks made worthless by the sudden demand for gold, and with many lines of ships held in ports because of the fear of capture, their situation was desperate. Congress passed two appropriation bills to aid in bringing home these unfortunate people.

A number of problems were forced on this congress also by the Mexican troubles. In connection with the landing of marines at Vera Cruz, following the insult to the flag incident, congress rushed through a resolution—the vote in the senate being taken at 3:20 a. m.—justifying the president.

The senate has ratified, during this congress, twenty-six peace treaties with foreign countries some of them being put through after the declaration of war in Europe. Two other important treaties, one with Colombia, paying her $25,000,000 as compensation for Panama, and the other with Nicaragua, paying her $3,000,000 for a naval base in Fonseca Bay and for an option on the Nicaragua canal route, were discussed, but failed to reach a vote on ratification.

Following years of anti-trust agitation, two bills were passed to regulate big business.

One the federal trade commission act, placed industrial corporations under such supervision as the interstate commerce commission exercises over the railroads. With confirmation, just before adjournment, of a majority of the trade board members, the commission will begin work at once. Among its duties, certainly in the president's opinion, will be

M'CORMICK VICTIM OF SCHOOL PADDLE

High school teachers surprised Principal McCormick after school Tuesday in honor of his birthday. All the faculty were present and each department made the chief an appropriate present.

During the fourth period in the morning session the absence of two of the teachers who had no classes was noticed by Mr. McCormick, but he attached no importance to the fact. The teachers had gone down town to purchase the presents which were "put under his plate" at 4:00 o'clock.

After the presents had been reviewed and the "birthday greeting" administered (with a paddle made especially for the occasion in the manual training department), a light lunch of coffee and cake and other dainties was partaken of by the assembled teachers.

wheat showed great weakness, owing to a succession of rumors that kept the pit excited. One rumor was that large orders for war supplies, including ammunition, had been cancelled during the last 48 hours for foreign governments. The trade was also alarmed by the progress being made by the allies in penetrating the Danube, and the traders pictured Russian wheat pouring into western Europe. Offerings of September wheat at large concessions from July took place today.

Corn closed lower, suffering in sympathy with wheat. Oats was materially lower, trailing after the other grains. Provisions remained about steady.

MEN AND CO-EDS HAVE MEET

Much Is Expected of the Team in Events with
Other Schools This
SpringWith the close of the normal school basketball season near at hand athletes are planning on including in another form of sport—that of an indoor spring track and field event. The meet will be held in preparation for the spring outdoor work that will be started as soon as the first peep of spring makes itself apparent.On April 9 the men and the co-eds are to engage in an indoor meet at the normal school gymnasium.
Events for the women will be the thirty yard dash, the high jump from ropes, and regular rope climbing. The men will do the thirty yard dash, the high jump, hand-over-hand rope climbing, the shot put (16 lb.) and wrestling. The plan is to make the men as well as the women engage in all events of their respective classes in an elimination program to select the pick of the athletes. To the winners of each event will be given gold medals.Silver medals will be presented to the runnersup.
In the spring events the normal school should stand among the topmost teams of the state. Some of the records made in previous years show that fast teams have been developed here and the fact that some of the athletes are still in school makes the school's chances all the more rosier for this year's track team.Some of the records made at the normal school follow:

ly decided on his tentative team. The only place worrying him is third rivals for the job.HOT WELLS, Texas.—Battling, tion followed by a session of road work busied the Cardinal regulars and rookies yesterday with the exception of Lutz, Meadows, Steele and BEGIN ON SALTSFlush your Kidneys occa-regularly can make a mistake by says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poison from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.Chas. A. Beyschlag, druggist, 503 junction donned by the federal court, cavorting in center field the St. Louis Feds took a strenuous workout under Fleider Jones Wednesday, finishing with road work, Marsans' injunction

Braves' camp today, where it was dropped last October. Alasee will be out again Monday.ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—If wet weather doesn't interfere, Pat Moran plans to put the Phillies through a fast workout today. Much interest is attached to the expected arrival today of George Whitted, ex-Boston

EXPECT STIFF MEET
WITH NOTRE DAMESMADISON, Wis., March 4.—Badger track athletes are on the last lap of a period of strenuous training preparation for Saturday's meet with Notre Dame at South Bend. The Wisconsin team will leave tomorrow for South Bend. Coach Tom Jones expects strong competition from the Catholics, in view of their recent meet against Michigan. The Badger coach looks for Mucks, Keeler and Gardner to improve their former records in the weight events. Hedges and Harvey should score points in the distance events. Notre Dame speed merchants have somewhat of a call on the Badgers.No one is without prejudices, but some are better than others at con-hard work for the winners with Paul-for the Gunds.Emil Horn cavorted around the head of the alley for a score of 225

JUDGE, LET'S MOVE.
THAT FELLOW'S JAW LOOKS AS IF HE HAS MUMPS. HE OUGHT TO BE QUARANTINED.

THAT'S JUST WHAT HE THINKS ABOUT YOU. I'LL TELL YOU BOTH ABOUT THE LITTLE REAL
TOBACCO CHEW THAT SATISFIES.

I'D HATE FOR MY FRIENDS TO SEE ME LOOKING LIKE HIM.

LOOKS are often deceiving.
In the old days everybody could spot the tobacco chewer just by the hump in his cheek.

"Right-Cut," the Real Tobacco Chew, gives men fine, satisfying tobacco comfort—and nobody can notice that they are chewing.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—cut fine, short shred—seasoned and sweetened just enough, cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away.
Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is the Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short shred so that you won't grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary candied tobacco makes you spit too much.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up with molasses and syrup. Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste in "Right-Cut."

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.
